Meet Marion's youngest entrepreneur

by Loretta Tappan

Brianna Carmichael, 10, became the youngest member of the Marion-Grant County Chamber of Commerce this month, shortly after establishing Bri B Boutique in April.

The boutique, first launched online at brieboutique.com, now has a bricks-and-mortar presence inside Constance Boutique in the Columbia Block building at 207 S. Washington St., Marion. The store is open Monday through Friday, 12 pm to 6 pm and Saturday, 12 pm to 8 pm.

"Constance and Bri B Boutique have very similar styles and complement each other well. It is a good feeling when you see local businesses working together," said Carmichael.

Carmichael came up with the idea a few years ago when her mom, Leah Nicole Lanning, opened her studio, Epic Creative, downtown Marion. "I wanted to open a boutique inside. I have loved fashion since before I could talk," said Carmichael.

The budding entrepreneur said her favorite part of owning a boutique is "watching girls buy clothes that I picked out is pretty cool. I enjoy shopping the market for new styles and bringing those styles to Grant County."

In addition to the Chamber membership, Lanning and Carmichael are also members of The Refinery Business Center in Marion.

Asked about what's next for the business, Carmichael said; "We are working on a billboard marketing with Constance and my mom at Burkhart Advertising. We want to grow our online social media pages. In August, I get to take two days off of school to travel to a style show to choose all of our fall and spring fashions... We are talking about working with local jewelry makers, and we are looking for the right cause to give back to."

'An Evening in the Gardens' fundraiser takes place Friday

by Loretta Tappan

The Friends of The Gardens will host the fourth annual Evening in the Gardens, a fundraiser for The Gardens and Meadow of Matter Park, on Friday, July 21, from 4-10 pm.

Past events attracted about 3,000 people to The Gardens and Meadow, more than six acres enclosed by towering trees, green landscapes, and ornamental gates, which offer a unique space for celebrating, learning, and healing within the 110-acres of the city park.

Doug Darga, the designer and director of maintenance and operations of The Gardens and Meadow of Matter Park, created the space for current and future generations to make memories and appreciate nature, from the sound of water trickling from several decorative water features to the sweet fragrance of fresh flowers in the breeze and the beauty of pink and yellow bicolor blooms, burgundy red flowers, and trailing blue, yellow, plum, green, and white plants.

In addition to the peaceful ambiance of the Gardens, the annual event offers an opportunity to experience a variety of art. At the past three events, Lisa Pelo, of Hot Blown Glass in Indianapolis, worked with patrons to make a paper weight. This year, Pelo will have eight one-hour spots, $125 each, available for a one-on-one

Verlin Horner: Serving the community from behind the meat counter

Behind the Scenes features personal stories from people who work in important but often unrecognized roles in our community.—Ed.

While the grocery and retail markets are changing, Verlin Horner, owner of Horner’s Butcher Block of Marion, and Horner’s Market of Fairmount, is proving that the big box store and the mom and pop shop can both win. Horner believes in the neighborhood market and is proud to serve the local communities of Marion and Fairmount. He said the key to their business’ success is offering a higher level of personal service and maintaining strong customer relationships. Horner and his wife Tenley purchased the Jackson Market located at 825 E. 30th St. from Richard and Verda Jackson in 1995 and turned it into Horner’s Butcher Block.

Horner said there had been a food store on the same site in the 1890s, based on information he received from the Marion Public Library and Museum. “This may be one of the oldest grocery store addresses in Indiana,” Horner said. The location was home to Marsh in the ’50s and ’60s. Then, the Jacksons owned and operated their market for 20 years before selling to the Horners.

The existing 10,000-square-foot building featuring a large steel arch entryway was built in 2015 after a multimillion dollar investment, including new equipment and parking lot. The Marion store design and decor is a blend of the traditional and modern neighborhood grocery store looks.

Horner’s stores have a loyal customer base; some have been coming in for more than 50 years. Horner knows their families and pets, which is why he felt staying and investing in the neighborhood where the grocery store got its start was important.

The new building, built behind the former structure, is the first new significant investment in the Thomas Jefferson Neighborhood for many years.

Before all of the renovations took place in Marion, Tenley and Verlin Horner purchased the former Driskill’s Market at 201 N. Main St., of Fairmount, in 2009.

Shortly after, in 2013, they upgraded the electricity and decor throughout the building, installed new deli cases, and upgraded from an eight-foot deli to a 28-foot deli counter.

Both the Marion and Fairmount markets carry the everyday items and a lot of specialty items and perishables that are not offered by the chain store competitors.

While there was a time Horner did not think he would stay in the grocery business, he said: “We’ve had good experiences in Fairmount and Marion, and we are in it for the long haul now.”

In addition to growth and expansion in the existing Horner’s Markets, the Horners will open a new market in the late fall in downtown Alexandria at the former Cox Supermarket site, which had been open for almost 80 years.

According to Horner, the site is being redeveloped under rental housing tax credit from the Indiana Housing and Community Development Authority into 20 apartments above the store and six more units on the west end of the parking lot. There is also a business park just north of the future market.

Horner has more than 40 years’ experience in meat cutting and retail grocery operations. He grew up in Richmond, IN, and started cutting meat at a nearby grocer in Fountain City.

A typical day starts around 7 am, and even during the busy holiday season, Horner said they have a good system and team, the days are never too long.

Horner moved to Marion in 1984 where he and Tenley Horner continued their studies at Indiana Wesleyan University (IWU). Equipped with extensive knowledge about the meat business, Verlin Horner worked at the Jackson Market as well as other jobs, while he and his wife each finished college.

In addition to feeding neighborhood families quality food, the Horners also spend time with their family and supporting community causes, such as the Marion Civic Theatre located in downtown Marion and the Marion Lions Club, which presented Horner with the Melvin Jones Fellowship plaque in November 2012. Horner was the first non-Lion recipient honored by the club.

Together, Tenley and Verlin Horner have three children, Isaac (and his wife Erika) Horner, Taylor (Elizabeth) Horner, and Mary Horner, and two grandchildren, Hannah and Natalie.

What makes a difference? Proper training

There have been many things that I have learned over the years that have been a great benefit to me. I have had the privilege of working with many skilled individuals who have had a great impact on my life. They have been able to offer things that I lacked, but desperately needed. One of the main things that I have gleaned from those who have been successful is that there is no replacement for hard work. There are no shortcuts. We can always learn to work smarter, but ultimately anything worth doing requires hard work.

As I have gone through my Top Ten list of things that have made a difference in my life, we come this week to number four—proper training. Those that name the name of Christ and call themselves Christians should be equipped to minister. I realize that is a big order, but God didn't save us to sit. Many believe that the only people that can minister are the pastors. What a wrong concept. The Scriptures teach us in Ephesians 4 that God equips the saints for service, and that means us.

Please understand, you don't have to have a college degree, Bible school degree, or even a high school education, to be used of God. What we all need, though, is proper training. The greatest strength of Grace Community Church is helping the believer have a closer walk with the Savior, and be a useful servant for Him. It doesn't matter how young or old you are, you can be a positive influence on others. In 1 Timothy 4:11-16 Paul is teaching Timothy, the young pastor of the church of Ephesus, to work on being influential in his flock. Timothy was young, but he could overlook different aspects.

We must, like Timothy, be an example to others. This is done in several different aspects.

1. Love—When you love people, they have a way of overlooking the shortcomings in your life. Is it hard for you to love others?

2. Faith—As we grow in our Christian experience, our faith becomes stronger. Faith in God is imperative if we want to influence others. If God said it, I believe it. James said a double-minded man is unstable. Faith brings stability.

3. Purity—There is a standard that God wants us to follow. When we do what God tells us, it brings a holiness upon our lives. This does not mean we are better than others, we are

JUST A THOUGHT

People are attracted to us if we have a right "spirit." This comes from the inside, and flows outward. Our conduct is a vital part of our training. The inner man portrays a godly walk, and a godly talk. You don't have to have a doctorate degree to understand godly living, and the simple standard provided in God's Word.

Proper training involves a heart for others, a heart that has been transformed for service. We have all been given at least one spiritual gift. We must do our part to develop that gift as God works through us. When we don't use what God gives us, we rob ourselves as well as others, by not putting them into practice.

God's Word will give us the proper training we need to do His will. He has provided many examples of men and women who had very little to offer, but He provided what was needed. Do you think He will do any less for you or me?

Tom

Newspaperman Quinn had a hand in community life

You most likely never met John Quinn, certainly never knew him, but I can guarantee you that if you lived in Marion and tried to keep in touch with the community around you for the last 50 years or so, in some small way he was a part of your life.

His full name was John Charles Quinn, an Irish Catholic boy from Providence, Rhode Island, and he cared as deeply and broadly and passionately about newspapers and journalism—the gathering, writing, editing and delivery of information that you and I need—as anyone I ever knew.

He had a hand in your life, albeit small, if you were a reader of the Chronicle-Tribune in Marion during the years that it was owned by the Gannett Co. While Gannett was out to make money—and they did it in spades—they also cared about the news, and Quinn (no one ever called him John or Mr. Quinn; he was simply Quinn) was the conscience of the company, the one man who could tell Al Neuharth or any other of the brass hats to sit down and shut up. He was the vice president for news of Gannett from the early '70s until he retired back in the early '90s. He died last week at the age of 92.

If you labored at a Gannett newspaper—or lived in a town in which the daily newspaper was a Gannett property—during the good years, before the pointy heads took over and consigned a lot of us to the bone heap, if you did you knew that if nothing else you had one guy at the top, first in Rochester, NY, then in Washington, DC, who was going to fight for you. Maybe not win all the time, but he would fight: Quinn.

Got a problem? Call Quinn. He was the ramrod-straight guy with the near-sighted hair. So called because more often than not his ever present glasses were perched on top of his head. He was not to be trifled with. He was looking after the newsrooms, the news content, of somewhere between 90 and 100 newspapers around the country in those days. For the record, Gannett bought the Chronicle-Tribune back in 1970 and owned it until it was sold to the Paxton people from Paducah a decade ago. I will be kind here and tell you that there is no way on God's earth that Quinn would have worked for those people. None.

Anyway, he came from an era in which newspapers were taken seriously, were read by all, and played a large part in the shaping of the community agenda. We, those of us chasing the news in those days, were not second class citizens, he told us. He fought the bean counters for the resources for us to do our jobs. He fought for quality hiring in the newsroom.

Here's a thought: Some of the people who came to Marion (or remained in Marion) to work at the daily newspaper on Quinn's watch and have gone on to other things include Alan Miller, now at IWU; Tammy Pearson at Project Leadership; Linda Wilk, Hands of Hope director at Family Services; Mike Cline at the prosecutor's office; Jane Kennedy Cline at Marion General Hospital; Brenda Finnell Morehead at Project Leadership. See what I mean?

A personal recollection: During a meeting of far-flung Gannett editors in Washington, Quinn worked his way around the room, came to me, grinned in a fairly evil way and said "Well, I suppose I'll have to listen to another sermon from Breen on the joys of life in Marion, Indiana." He did.

He could be harsh. Brutally sarcastic. I recall him once describing the staff at a newspaper he had just visited as "folks who are doing a better job than they know how to do."

He once was talking about the fledgling USA Today national newspaper, which he was editing at the time. In a moment of self-deprecation, he said that the paper, known for its brevity, had just won the Pulitzer Prize for best investigative paragraph.

For many of us, both inside the Gannett family and out, he summed up both the dedication and the joy of journalism, of trying to tell the community the story of itself every day.

Newspaper work, he said with that wicked grin just below the surface, "is the most fun you can have with your clothes on."

PHOTOS FROM THE WEEK—GLEN DEVITT

Monday was the rain-delayed USAC Sprint Week race at the Gas City Speedway. I haven't attended the races in a while and Sprint Week featured some of the best in this class. (Top three photos on the left.) Tuesday brought Fran Cosmo, former lead singer of Boston, along with his band to the Gas City Concerts in the Parks. (Top two photos on the right.)

Midweek I had a quick photo shoot with one of the Mississinewa cheerleaders on the brand new turf field. Looking good, Indians. (Left, bottom.) I headed over to Greentown to attend the Howard County Fair. It's a lot like the Grant County Fair on steroids. The evening I was there, they featured a great cover band out of Indy, The Flying Toasters. (At right.)

Looking forward to some of the community's events

Where's Mike? This space isn't usually used to contemplate future events, but this week I'm going to make an exception and look ahead to the month of August.

There are a lot of things that are coming to this area in August and you are likely aware of many of them because they happen annually at this time. I'm thinking of the Van Buren Popcorn Festival, back-to-school sales and shopping, all the local schools beginning, and the high school sports seasons. We know they are ahead on the calendar, we anticipate them, but we know pretty much what to expect and they don't cause a lot of undue excitement.

This year is different. There is an event coming to nearby venues that happens in those places only once every 375 years, and it is so spectacular that stories and legends have surrounded it for more than a thousand years. Ancient civilizations wondered about it. Scientists have studied it for hundreds of years and still are curious and study it seriously.

I'm referring to a total solar eclipse and it will occur across the continental United States on Monday, August 21, 2017. A solar eclipse happens when the moon passes between the Earth and the sun, blocking out the sun's light.

A solar eclipse is when the moon passes between the Earth and the sun, blocking out the sun's light. In August a total solar eclipse can be seen from coast to coast. Above is the path of the total eclipse. Grant County will be in the path that will see 90% blockage.

While a solar eclipse occurs somewhere on the Earth every year or two, it hasn't happened in the United States since 1979 (38 years ago) and it won't happen again in this country until 2024 (and then 2044). In those cases only a few states will see it, and that's one thing that sets this one apart. It will move swiftly across 12 states from the West Coast to the East Coast.

"If you are lucky enough to be in the path of totality on August 21, 2017, you will never forget it, because it's not just something you see—it's something you experience," write Pat and Fred Espenak in a booklet about the upcoming eclipse entitled "Get Eclipsed." They continue: "Daylight is replaced by a mysterious dusk, and bright planets and stars become visible. Plants and animals act as though it were night fall as flowers close up and birds return to roost. There's a chill in the air because the temperature drops a dozen degrees or more. The brilliant Sun is replaced by a black orb surrounded by a ghostly halo. The colors of sunset ring the horizon, and the hair on the back of your neck stands up as those around you scream in amazement at the totally eclipsed Sun. As totality ends, a brilliant burst of sunlight appears along the edge of the Sun. This is the 'diamond ring effect' since the corona and sunburst look like a celestial engagement ring." I am definitely not an astronomer, but I do get excited about celestial events like meteor showers and the full moon on a clear night. Eclipses are special, and this one even more so. I've witnessed partial solar eclipses with file cards with holes in them as a viewer. But the chance to see a total solar eclipse is too good to pass up. I suggest that you do some research and reading about this incredible event that is less than a month away and make plans to go to Missouri, or Illinois, or Kentucky to witness it if you can.

I would suggest that you begin to make plans now, because hotels are already filling up in the path of totality. Highways in those areas may well be crowded on that Monday. If you stay in Grant County you will get only a 90% partial eclipse, and that's not special or spectacular. I am certain that we will all hear more about this in the next month, but remember...I TOLD YOU SO!

While we're focusing on future events I want to tell you about an adventure I am anticipating. I've been told that one secret of combating aging is to continue to take on new challenges, and I have told you how I've been reading more books. One of those was "Giving It All Away and Getting It Back Again" by David Green, the founder of Hobby Lobby. He says in that book that there are only two things that last forever, people's souls and the Word of God. He mentions that most of his giving and efforts in his later years are about those two things. Coinciding with reading that book and contemplating my response to it, I was invited to join Wycliffe Associates, a mission organization dedicated to translating the Bible. They have an innovative program called Mobilized Assisted Scripture Translation (MAST), a collaborative method that uses trained facilitators to assist national volunteers to translate the Bible in a local language. Their ambitious goal is to have God's Word in every language by 2025.

As I investigated this opportunity, it became apparent to my wife and family that this was something that would be a good fit for me. I applied to become a part of it, and have been accepted as a Wycliffe Associate, been assigned to go to Nigeria with a team of volunteers, and will be leaving on August 29 to assist with a two-week workshop. Your prayers for travel safety and to absorb the training and techniques are appreciated. Also, there are challenges of not having done academic work for quite a while, working every day, the rigors of travel, the summer heat of Africa, and being gone for 19 days. It's a challenge I'm excited about and eagerly anticipating.

So in recent days I have been looking to the future and making plans to enjoy some things that are yet to happen. I hope you also have some exciting plans ahead, and that you have a good week. God bless you!

Randolph signs two-year contract with the Kings

Grizzlies honor him for work in the community, on the court

by Sean Douglas

For eight seasons, former Marion Giant standout Zach Randolph was the heart and soul of the Memphis Grizzlies.

Now, his #50 will be raised to the rafters at FedEx Forum.

On July 11, Randolph officially signed a two-year deal to join the Sacramento Kings. However, the legacy he left behind in Memphis, both on the court and in the community, will not soon be forgotten.

After spending his first six seasons with the Portland Trailblazers, along with short stints with the Los Angeles Clippers and the New York Knicks, Randolph joined the Grizzlies in 2009. Though Memphis never made it to the NBA Finals during Randolph's tenure, the Grizzlies became one of the top teams in the Western Conference, qualifying for the playoffs in seven of Randolph's eight seasons.

Randolph has always been one of the toughest power forwards to defend, as his tenacity underneath the basket combined with his soft touch from mid-range have given him the ability to score from multiple areas.

Along with that, Randolph was a model of consistency for the Griz-zies, playing in at least 68 games in all but one of his eight seasons in Memphis.

Grizzlies' general manager Chris Wallace and president Jason Wexler had this to say about Randolph in a jointly-written thank you letter:

The eight years Zach spent in the mud, in Memphis, are special. They are filled with franchise-defining basketball success, but they are clearly about more than that. Every Memphian felt it and all of us believe it.

Zach helped establish what it means to play for the Grizzlies on the court and in the community, and in doing so helped forge an identity for our City.

The Grizzlies' owner Robert Pera also wrote a glowing send off for Randolph, thanking him for everything he did for both the Grizzlies and the city of Memphis as a whole:

Zach, you helped turn a lottery team into glass blowing experience.

The first 75 people to buy an Art to Experience card, $25, will enjoy sculpting pottery clay, painting a canvas or wine glass, designing a Pysanky Egg (Ukrainian art), coloring a zentangle T-shirt from Hoosier Jiffy Print, and creating a glass fused coaster. Or, participants can pay $10 and pick one art experience.

Limits placed on the Art to Experience cards and glass blowing are a result of time needed to invest in the activities and to gauge how much inventory is necessary for the event.

Additionally, for $30, patrons can listen to expert presentations from Pat Seibel, a Proven Winners partner, and Jack Barnwell, an award winning garden designer.

Live music, demonstration booths, and activity tents such as the Grant County Rocks rock painting booth are included with the $5 entry fee.

The Friends of the Gardens, a 501c3 nonprofit, formed in 2014 to enhance support for the City of Marion public park, provides opportunities for more people to visit by offering more quality-of-life and educational events, and build a long-term sustainability plan or endowed fund through the Community Foundation of Grant County.

Since the organization was developed, volunteers organized and managed marketing, fundraising, and the business. With committed board members and community support, the organization received their tax-exempt status last fall. Shortly after, they began searching for an executive director, and hired Sheila Todd in May.

"I came from being the executive director at MPO and people would always say, 'Oh, it is such a treasure for a community of this size to have a professional orchestra,' and I see the Gardens as the same thing," said Todd.

In October 2016 the organization expanded their activities schedule to include free community events such as Plant-A-Palooza, Magical Plant Party, Happy Hearts and Arts, Winter Magic in the Gardens, and Fall Magic in the Meadow.

All events in the Gardens and Meadow focus on raising awareness and appreciation of nature to cultivate the community in the arts.

"They are all so creative, and that is one of the reasons I was attracted to the opportunity. I was so impressed not only with what they have built, but also the resource that the Gardens is for the community," said Todd.

The Gardens are nationally recognized by Proven Winners, a plant propagating company, as a Signature Garden, which is a prestigious certification for high-profile properties across the country. There are only five in the United States, located in Buffalo, NY; Mackinac, MI; Marion, IN; Rochester, MI; and White Sulphur Springs, WV.

To receive the designation, the Gardens must meet strict standards, "including high visibility, demographic synergies, marketing recognition, and a commitment to a quality landscape presentation," according to provenwinners.com. Signature Gardens are reviewed annually and can lose their certification if they do not demonstrate all criteria adequately.

The Meadow of Matter Park, the most recent addition to the Gardens, is the setting for the butterfly garden. Also, nationally recognized, the Meadow takes many people to plan and maintain the natural plants there for pollinating insects, birds, and bugs.

"Our butterfly garden is a certified monarch weigh station for monarch butterflies. In the fall, September 9, we will host our first Monarch Festival in the Meadow, where they will tag butterflies and release them for their migration to Mexico," said Todd.

Turn back the pages: Remembering Blackmon, the Turners

One of the most popular features of Ken Hill's Sports Hotline was "Turn Back the Pages," in which he revisited past issues of the paper and reprinted notable stories. In honor of the Hotline and as a legacy to Hill, The News Herald asked him for permission to carry on the tradition of "Turn Back the Pages." Hill readily agreed. Look for it in our pages on a regular basis.—Editor

Hill Side Views—1979

Not many freshmen are capable of playing basketball for Marion High School. They usually aren't matured enough, even if they have the ability and potential. Such is not the case of one James Blackmon who has dazzled them at the Pal Club and in junior high, and now is doing the same as a starter on Marion's junior varsity. The 5-11 Blackmon may look like a freshman in facial appearance, but he doesn't play like one. He does everything so well that you would think he's played varsity ball for three years. Many seniors don't handle themselves as well as Blackmon does. He scores, he plays defense, he passes, and he rebounds. You might even find him selling popcorn at halftime. You always hesitate to brag about a young man because too much bragging might put too much pressure on him. But, I can honestly say that Blackmon is the most polished and best freshmen to come out of Marion in my 13 years in town. He scored 13 and 25 points in the Little Giants' first two games, but his scoring may not be the most impressive thing about him. It's his poise and court-sense. Or, is it his passing? Maybe, it's his moves? His defense? Giant Coach Larry Liddle didn't want to waste Blackmon's freshmen year at Jones by playing against other ninth-graders. He wanted him to get high school experience right away so he started him off on the Little Giants. That's something you rarely see.

A few freshmen, most recently Jeff Todd, Joseph Price, and Mark Lihani, have been brought up to the junior varsity late in the season but only Blackmon has started out that way.

Harold Curdy is the last freshmen to varsity ball at Marion. That was back in the mid-60's.

The Giants don't like to use freshmen at that level, but Blackmon just isn't any freshmen. He may be ready for the varsity before long. He may be ready now. Marion is already stacked with veteran guards in Lorenzo Pettiford, Rocky Adrianson, Ronnie Williams, and Dion Welton so Blackmon may not be needed as much as maybe in other years.

But, still don't be surprised if Blackmon isn't brought up to the varsity before the year is out.

If Blackmon keeps the good attitude that he has now, he can't miss being some kind of player for the Giants.

He eats, sleeps, and drinks basketball even though he quarterbacked Jones' undefeated freshmen football team this season and also plays baseball and runs track.

There's one story to illustrate Blackmon's affection for the big round ball. His Babe Ruth baseball team was going to play a game. He was late so the coach went to pick him up. Only he wasn't home. It seems he had taken his ball uniform with him and had gone to play basketball down at the Pal Club. He had been there the good part of the day.

Things You May Not Know

December 8, 1995

...No doubt for the first time in history the top scorers in Grant County high school boys' and girls' basketball come from the same family...

Senior Zeke Turner leads the boys' scoring with a 22.8 average while Jessica Turner, his sophomore sister, heads the girls' list at a 27.8 clip... They play for Lakeview Christian.

...Creighton Burns, the one-time Mississinewa High School boys' head coach, is the head coach at Kentucky's Sue Bennett College... Sue Bennett fell to 1-5 on the season with a 100-79 loss at IPFW last Thursday night in Fort Wayne... This is Burns' first year at Sue Bennett.

...Junior Brian Walker of Marion ranks high on several all-time basketball lists at Navy... After the opening win over Air Force, Walker ranked 10th on the Navy career list with 87 steals... He's eighth on the Navy career assist list with 263... That's also 10th on the Patriot League all-time list... He led the Patriot League in assists last season with 169.

...The 309 yards by Mississinewa's Eric Skeens against Maconaquah in the football opener Aug. 25 was the seventh best one-game rushing total the entire season... The best was 364 by Jason Spear of Logansport on 39 carries the same night against Peru... Skeens also had 39 carries...

day cut his lead from six strokes to just one heading into the third round next weekend at Arbor Trace. Andrew Varner, who has the third-most Grant County Amateur wins in the tournament's history with six, including five straight wins from 2009-13, is in second place with a total score of 141. After shooting a 70 at Shady Hills on Saturday, Varner finished with the lowest score at Walnut Creek (71) to stay one stroke behind Hoch. Cody White, who has won the past two Grant County Amateurs, ended the weekend in third place. After entering round two six strokes behind Hoch, White finished with a 73, the second-best score of the day, to pull within two strokes of the lead. On the women's side, Jayne Barnes has a commanding 10-stroke lead heading into the third round next weekend. After shooting an 80 at Shady Hills, Barnes finished her day at Walnut Creek with an 83 to finish with a total score of 163. Jenna Boucher is in second place with a score of 173.

An open letter to the county's high school golfers, and coaches

This is an open letter to the boys and girls golf coaches here in Grant County. The first two rounds of the 2017 Hoosier Jiffy Print Grant County Amateur Golf Tournament were played this past weekend, with hardly anyone noticing that the local high school players all but boycotted the event.

I can't imagine how more young players in Grant County weren't motivated to sign up and test their games against the best in the area.

Some might say the second and third weekends of July are family vacation time, but then again June, July and August are all vacation time.

The tourney went off without a hitch, and three former high school legends—players who went on to play college golf—have separated themselves from the field on the men's side. Lance Hoch, Andy Varner and Cody White should put on a show this weekend.

Meanwhile, Jayne Barnes has taken a double-figure lead in the ladies event.

It would have been nice if 20 or so young men and 20 or so young ladies who play high school golf here in Grant County would have jumped into the fray. The total number of players would have jumped from 44 up to nearly 90, and would have made the first 72-hole county championship in a number of years one to remember.

The top players in the area head to Arbor Trace on Saturday and to Meshingomesia on Sunday. If you can find the time, stop out and watch the final weekend of the men's and women's 2017 Hoosier Jiffy Print Grant County Amateur Golf Tournament.

If the weather is even 50% as perfect as it was this past weekend, it should be a great shootout for the two titles.
