Donnelly talks to Dems.

U.S. senator addresses FDR dinner

U.S. Senator Joe Donnelly was the keynote speaker when the Grant County Democrats held their annual FDR dinner at Indiana Wesleyan University last Saturday.

"This opportunity you gave me, to be the U.S. Senator," Donnelly said, was "the reason the Affordable Care Act was protected...because of the doors you knocked on, the calls you made."

"This is a place I have deep in my heart," he said, "You're the ones...you gave methat chance."

"We have a big vote coming up on health care," he said, "...together, we can stop them again."

The crowd of approximately 120 gave the senator a standing ovation both before and after his speech. "I am so proud of Grant County and having you for my friends," he told them.

After finishing his speech, Donnelly ducked out the back door, leaving the dinner in the hands of Marion Mayor Jess Alumbaugh, who was introduced by his Chief of Staff Mike Flynn.

Alumbaugh introduced other members of his staff that were in attendance.

"The journey's just beginning," Alumbaugh said, "The fi-

Stage dedication heads Dean festival

by Loretta Tappan

During this year's annual James Dean Festival, the Fairmount Lions Club gave guests and residents of the event something new to celebrate when they dedicated the recently resurrected Fairmount High School (FHS) stage to the town on Saturday, September 23.

Invited on stage for the dedication ceremony were some classmates of James Dean from the 1949 graduating class of FHS, the Fairmount Town Board, and members of the Fairmount Lions Club.

Guest speakers included Mar-

United Way kicks off campaign

by Loretta Tappan

The United Way of Grant County launched its 2017-2018 annual campaign over breakfast at Marion General Hospital with partner agencies, board members from past to present, and community partners.

This year's campaign aims to raise $550,000 and has about $60,000 already in the bank from pre-scheduled donations and other gifts.

Alicia Hazelwood, executive director of the United Way, said they estimated the 2015-2016 annual campaign to raise about $512,000 and the nonprofit exceeded its goal, achieving $553,000, so they decided to increase the annual campaign goal.

The organization also conducted a financial stability study of Grant County support and discovered about 75 percent of campaign funding comes from voluntary bi-weekly payroll deductions from people employed in Grant County. Employee donations currently average $2.50 per pay period. The United Way is challenging donors to start giving $5 every two weeks.

"We set a goal of 80 percent for employee participation from the Grant County workforce (currently at 75 percent). If we meet our participation goal and those employees give $5 a pay, the United Way would raise $1.2 million without corporate gifts, grants, or matches," said Hazelwood.

The Browns take over at the Plymouth Club

Behind the Scenes features personal stories from people who work in important but often unrecognized roles in our community.—Ed.

Meet the new owners of the Plymouth Club, Derek and Stephanie Brown, former corporate industry workers and self-made small business owners in their hometown of Marion. The journey into entrepreneurial lifestyle did not begin with the purchase of the Plymouth Club. Derek Brown first convinced his wife to let him start his own carpentry business, Midwest Cabinet Solutions, Inc.

After working for Foster-Forbes Glass Company for near 13 years, starting at the Marion plant in the mailroom and training to become a mechanic before transferring to Dunkirk when the Marion plant shut down, Brown started dreaming up business ideas.

“I knew early on, within two or three years at the Marion plant, that I wasn’t just an employee. That I had more in me than just clocking and clocking out,” said Brown. “In breaks and spare time, I would write down business plans and ideas. I wasted a lot of time, you could say doing them, but I think they developed my brain in deciding what I wanted to get into.”

The Browns did not have a lot of money to start a business. Both worked good jobs, but Derek Brown would have to quit Foster-Forbes to start his new company. Unable to get a small business loan, he decided to apply for a $36,000 home improvement loan on their house. The loan went through and was used as capital for his first business.

He said the first 10 years were the toughest: “I got called multiple times about checks, I mean, to the point she (Stephanie Brown) was ready to kick my butt to the curb or find another job. Thank God she stuck with me.”

Derek Brown also gives thanks and praise to his business partner, Jeremy Ford, who helped him take a $36,000 home loan and build a multi-million dollar company.

Feeling good about his business venture, he said:

“I felt I owed Steph. She always wanted out of Wal-Mart, and we always wanted to do a bar and grill. Everybody kept telling us how hard it is, and we knew it was going to be tough, but we are workers. I’m a busy-body. She’s a busy-body. We like doing things.”

Stephanie Brown worked in logistics for nearly 25 years, starting at RCA/GE/Thompson Consumer Electronics, then the Dollar General Distribution Center, and the last 11 years at Wal-Mart Distribution. The couple started looking at properties in both Indiana and Florida.

“We were dreaming for the last five years. We made a few offers in Key West. I wasn’t planning on leaving Wal-Mart for a while, but the day they found out I bought a business, they moved me to another shift that would have never worked with this,” she said.

They made a few offers, but nothing came through. Within the last year, they heard Janet and Ernie Ferguson were considering selling the Plymouth Club.

“We always go back to our memories. I have very fond memories of growing up here with my dad, being a GM employee. I’d come in here (to the Club) in the evenings with those guys after they got off work and hung out. It felt like a natural fit, so we took a leap of faith,” said Derek Brown.

With two small businesses and a family, their day begins around 7 am and does not end until about 1 am every day.

Her vision for the future of the Plymouth Club is more family orientated. “When people think of the PC, they think of a bar,” she said, “We want to highlight the restaurant and pizzeria.”

They bought and installed a brick oven from Italy and renovated the former dance and lounge area into an all-ages pizzeria. They are rolling out a new menu for patrons of both Crest Lanes, the bowling plaza next door, and the Plymouth Club.

“People look at small businesses and think they are rich automatically, but there is a lot of sacrifice that goes into starting a business. If you’re going to make something work, it takes a lot of effort and brain power. Nothing is given to a small business owner. They struggle. They work hard,” said Derek Brown. “It takes dedication to build something. We’re just ordinary people, struggling, trying to keep our heads above the water, but we have this weird thing in our brain that says we have to build something. I don’t know what it is, but we just cannot turn that off. That’s pretty much the definition of a small business owner. Dedication, hard work, never stops, and is always thinking about the next thing.”

Looking back, he enjoyed his work with Foster-Forbes and believes manufacturing plays a large role in our economy and community; Brown said: “That’s what we miss in this community, manufacturing. That really built this area, allowed me not to have to go to school. It provided another option other than school. Those days are dwindling. We really need to get some manufacturing back in these areas. It’s what built us.”

As partners in life and business, the Browns both agreed they argue all the time, but they are “in it for life together.”

He said: “We love each other. She is my pride and joy. I’d cut a kidney out if she needed it. Owning and operating your own business is a stressful thing, but we don’t let the arguments linger. She’s my life, and that’s pretty much it in a nutshell.”

She said: “It’s challenging, but it is fun. This is what we’ve wanted to do for a long time. We fight like cats and dogs, but it’s over with once we fight and get it out. We can have our family here. We can come to work and have our 14-year-old here working with us. It’s nice.”

Derek was born and raised in Marion and graduated from Bennett High School, class of 1992, then studied at Vincennes University for a year. Stephanie’s dad transferred to the General Tire Plant when she was five. She attended St. Paul Catholic School, then Bennett Catholic High School.

The couple first met at Bennett. He was in second grade, and she was in sixth grade. She helped as a teacher’s assistant in his class, but they did not start dating until 2001. After high school, she earned her degree from Purdue University.

Their “hobby” is their five children: daughter Logan Riddle, 24, and sons Gabe Brown, 26, Shane Riddle, 23, Grant Riddle, 21, and Holden Brown, 14.

Number 8 on a personal Top 10 list

Over the last several months we have looked at the Top Ten list I compiled for my personal life. I also challenged you to sit down and engage your thoughts concerning the most important things in your life. Let's review my list, so far:

- 1. The Bible
- 2. Stewardship
- 3. Your Calling
- 4. Proper Training
- 5. You are the Servant
- 6. Keep First Things First
- 7. Time Management

Now we come to number eight on the list—Availability. For this article we will use Mark 1:9-11 for our text. Mark portrays Christ as a servant. Christ's ministry would be considered short by any standard; however, He gave us a great example in such a short span of time. We will look at this subject in three sections.

1. Life's Social Events

Jesus attended a wedding in Galilee, and it was there He performed His first recorded miracle. His presence testified to the sanctity of marriage, but I believe it lends itself to another thought. He was interested in the social things of this life. Jesus wanted the people to see that He was no different from them. He came down to their level in order to make a real life connection.

JUST A THOUGHT

Some of us really don't want to make life connections with others. Is it because we don't want them to see us as we are? There is something to be said about the "personal touch." Jesus was not too busy to stop at a wedding. I'm convinced we can all be guilty of living life at a rapid pace. We need to slow down and enjoy it. Life is a gift, no matter how long it might last.

2. Physical Needs –

(Mark 1:29-31)

Christ not only cares about the social, but He also cares about our physical being. Jesus did not come to be a physical healer, but He did it many times. He now stops at Peter's mother-in-law's house. While He was there, He took time for her physical needs. He touched her, prayed for her, and then raised her up from her bed of affliction. There is not one of us that isn't affected by the physical things of this life. Sometimes our aches and pains have a way of consuming us. Our Lord really cares about our physical needs. He understands our needs before we voice them.

3. Spiritual Needs – (Luke 19)

Jesus cares about our social life, and our physical condition, but He is most concerned with our spiritual life. As He was going through Jericho, it wasn't just another trip. He came to meet a tax collector named Zacchaeus. If we were going through Jericho, who would we be looking for? We would all probably answer "anyone but a tax collector." Jesus came to seek and to save that which was lost (Luke 19:10). The Gospel message that Jesus brought was an all-inclusive one that brought hope. It showed the people that Jesus had come for them.

As I look at these three thoughts, I want to be like Jesus. He made Himself available to anyone and everyone who had a need. When others have a need we should be available. The proof of this truth is in those who step up to help us when we are in need. They become available because they want to help. Let's do our best to step up to the plate for others in time of need.

cus Winslow, cousin of James Dean, and John David Nall, son of Dean's speech teacher Adeline Nall.

"This stage is about to make a second history for itself. How this wonderful stage was prepared for its second century in existence is the result of the incredible work of the Fairmount Lions Club. They are the true heroes of this stage's next century, and I thank them for doing so and for allowing me to be here," said Nall.

The building crew used 98 percent of the original scuffed-up stage boards, as well as the same archway, four stage light bars, and most of the crown molding. Roger Krumel, the owner of Marion Tent and Awning, created the new stage curtain to resemble the original. The brick walls on both sides of the stage are also original brick from the school, built in 1898.

Members of the Fairmount Lions Club cleaned an additional 500 bricks taking turns in two-hour shifts, two days a week for two months.

"that's probably all we'll get done this year."

He ended by saying the best thing that people could do would be to join those who start each week with prayers for the city. "It's changing things, folks," he said.

James Hayes, a Fairmount Lion, said they assembled the block boxes, and cleaned off the old mortar and glued a plaque on each brick before packing them to raise funds for ongoing maintenance of the stage, various Lions Club projects such as the eyeglass program, and the stage concert fund.

President Jake Roth said: "We have three bands lined up for May, June, and July. We are looking for another band in August. All of those bands are going to come and play for free in 2018."

When not in use, the stage contains two built-in, 12-and-a-half-foot-tall sliding doors for security.

In addition to providing interesting facts about the structure, the ceremony gave Deaners and FHS graduates an opportunity to share personal stories and savor another point of interest.

To defeat the wrecking ball and save the stage from the same destruction as the rest of FHS, the Fairmount Lions Club spent more than seven years of planning, labor, and fundraising, a total of $80,000.

When I say “good,”
you say “neighbor.”

Now that's teamwork.

GRANT COUNTY LIFE

PHOTOS FROM THE WEEK—GLEN DEVITT

I started the week off with a "rain-out" of an outdoor event (top, center), so following the showers, I ended up enjoying the Gardens at Matter Park later in the evening (at right).

I made a trip over to Taylor University to watch them host a volleyball match against IU East (above, left), a very competitive and exciting match-up

The remainder of the week involved cars, motorcycles (at right) and a very lopsided football game between Mississinewa and Madison Grant (far right, center). I only lasted to halftime and left at 48-0. The final score was 69-0, so I felt I made the right decision to head back to cars and motorcycles (bottom, right).

I closed out my week with "13 Steps", a wonderful performance at the Black Box Theater at IWU as part of the continuing "Festival of Shorts" by the Community School of the Arts (top, right).

‘Our best idea:’ the preservation of public lands for our kids

Among the assorted acts of malice being espoused by President Trump and his Twitter birds is an evil little plan to scale back some of our National Monuments out in the West, to rid us of some our public land so that cattlemen or miners or loggers or someone who stands to make a profit at our expense can do so pretty much unnoticed.

Public land doesn’t mean very much to those of us here in Indiana because we don’t have much of it. The Indiana Dunes National Lake Shore and the Hoosier National Forest down in southern Indiana, but that’s pretty much it. Not something we pay attention to every day. But out in the West—Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado—that’s an entirely different matter. Millions of acres of grassland or timberland or just plain precious beautiful country have been set aside over the past 100 or so years as our patrimony and our legacy to be left in perpetuity to our children and grandchildren.

Someone called it—the preservation of land and resources—called it “America’s best idea,” and it might well be. It began, really, with the creation of Yellowstone National Park in far northwestern Wyoming—2,219,789 acres preserved and protected forevermore by a stroke of President Grant’s pen in 1872—and the creation of the National Park Service 101 years ago last month by President Woodrow Wilson.

What began as the fairly modest Park Service—the rangers in those green uniforms and Smoky Bear hats—has grown to 22,000 professional employees and a quarter million volunteers who look after everything from Grand Canyon to Constitution Hall; 417 parks, preserves, monuments, battlefields, anything that we as a society have decided ought to be nurtured, parts of our past and future that we have decided to invest in protecting.

In fact, the breadth and depth of it all is a big part of the story: 59 national parks, 87 national monuments, 78 historic sites, 25 battlefields and military parks, and an assortment of lesser sites—parkways, trails, lakeshores, that sort of thing—bringing us to the 417 total where you will still find those men and women in the green uniforms looking after the welfare of both the site and its visitors. No small task.

They do everything from selling tickets to tourists at the Gettysburg battlefield in Pennsylvania to explaining how Custer lost his hair on a hilltop in southeastern Montana, at the Battle of the Little Bighorn in 1876.

Incidentally, the largest national park property is the 13 million acres of the Wrangell-St. Elias National Park in Alaska and the smallest is the tiny Thaddeus Kosciuszko National Memorial on a residential lot in Pennsylvania. We here in Hoosierland have but three National Park Service sites: The imposing George Rogers Clark memorial on the banks of the Wabash River at Vincennes, the Abraham Lincoln Boyhood home down in Spencer County and the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore up in Lake County on the shore of Lake Michigan.

We do, however, lay claim to a former boss of the whole shootin’ match: Jim Ridenour, who was director of the National Park Service during the George H.W. Bush presidency. He lives just up the road in Wabash.

Lest you think no one cares, try this: Last year, in 2016, 330 million men, women and children visited one or more of the national parks. Most Someone called it—the preservation of land and resources and natural beauty—called it “America’s best idea,” and it might well be.

popular: Great Smoky Mountain National Park, with 10,710,000 visitors, and the most visited in the system, even though it is not a national park as such, the Blue Ridge Parkway, with 15 million visitors.

And, since Vietnam has been on our minds for a few days, consider this: The Vietnam Veterans Memorial, the wall in Washington with the 59 thousand names inscribed was visited last year by 5,597,000 of us.

A remarkable thing that we have done for ourselves here in America, and we’d best take good care of it.

United Way, Continued from page 1

The average employee gift to the United Way worldwide network is at about 30 percent participation.

The kickoff breakfast serves as an opportunity for the nonprofit organization to set the tone of the campaign for businesses and partner agencies and share helpful information about the community and the organization’s impact.

Hazelwood said: “It is really important that we are looking at the health of all people. We are looking at the education of all children. We’re looking at financial stability for families and individuals in crisis to meet their basic needs. It’s not just about helping families that are struggling, but building stronger families across the board.”

In addition to financial support, the United Way of Grant County works with partnering agencies through intentional training, development opportunities, strategic planning, and active listening to the community at-large. Hazelwood said: “We want to make sure our heart matches the community dynamic.”

The organization started a family shelter coalition that includes the Salvation Army, Family Services Society, Bridges, the Marion Career Center, and Grant County Rescue Mission. The United Way serves on the Grant County Substance Abuse Task Force and works to hire an AmeriCore volunteer with a grant to lead that task force. Additionally, Hazelwood is a member of the Thriving Families, Thriving Grant County Collective Impact Initiative and the facilitator for the Early Childhood Coalition.

Other ways to support the United Way include running an internal campaign, inviting someone from the United Way to speak at a company event, hosting fundraising activities for employees such as donations for jean days and Live United T-shirts, and corporate matches.

As part of its campaign kickoff celebration, two teams of five played a friendly game of Family Feud after the breakfast and presentation as an example of one activity employees can host to motivate employees to give.

The organization took time to give thanks to Insurance Management Group for the highest increase, 414.7 percent, in giving during last year’s campaign, and to Lezlie Winter, the assistant superintendent at Mississinewa Community Schools, for being the volunteer of the year.

Mississinewa Community Schools raised over $10,000 between their students, faculty and staff, and a private donor who did some matching of their faculty and staff gifts.

Panthers crush Eagles, Indians blast Argylls in co. matchups

by Sean Douglas

There were two major factors in the Eastbrook Panthers' win on Friday night: the play of senior Drew Barajas, and the speed of the Panthers' defense. When it was all said and done, the Panthers came away with a 64-0 over the Oak Hill Golden Eagles, improving their record to 6-0 on the season.

Barajas set the tone early, scoring a 69-yard touchdown run on Eastbrook's first offensive play from scrimmage to give the Panthers an early lead.

After Oak Hill quarterback Landry Ozmun threw an interception to Mason Hale on the Golden Eagles' ensuing possession, the Panthers quickly and methodically moved down the field, capping off their second drive with a three-yard touchdown run by Davon Wallace.

The Eastbrook defense came through once again, forcing their second turnover in as many drives to give the ball back to the offense. Two plays later, Barajas scampered 21 yards into the end zone to increase Eastbrook's lead to three touchdowns.

Late in the first quarter, the Panthers added another quick strike. After a poor punt by the Golden Eagles gave Eastbrook great field position at the Oak Hill 21-yard line, Hale threw a strike to Barajas in the end zone to give the Panthers a 28-0 lead.

At that point, the rout was on, as the Panthers cruised the rest of the way to victory.

Barajas finished with four touchdowns—two on the ground, one through the air, and one on a punt return. All smiles after the game, Barajas didn't give himself any credit, but rather, he gave it to the guys in front of him. "It was definitely fun," Barajas said after the game. "When you have a great line like we have this year blocking in front of you, anything can happen on any play. I'm just really thankful for all the hard work they have put in this year to make us better."

While Barajas might have been humble about his accomplishments, Head Coach Jeff Adamson certainly bragged about his star player after the game. "[Drew] is a dynamic player," Adamson said. "He has the ability to score any time he touches the ball, whether it's on special teams or on a run. He's just so explosive."

While Barajas provided a spark on the offensive side of the ball, Eastbrook's defense made life miserable for the Golden Eagles as a whole. The running game—the bread and butter of the Golden Eagles' offense—couldn't get anything going on Friday night, as the Eastbrook defenders closed on the ball with speed and precision. Just when it seemed that the Golden Eagles had an opening, the Panthers quickly closed it, not allowing any big lanes for Reid Newhouse or Wes Tranisire to run the ball through.

"They're just fast, and they are fast everywhere," Oak Hill Head Coach Bud Ozmun said after the game. "They have fast guys that are second teamers. They are good. I have faced them for years and have seen some really good teams. I can't rank them, but if this isn't one of his three or four, I would be shocked."

Despite the tough loss, O-

The mistakes in passing doomed the Giants once again on Saturday, as they were defeated in four sets by the Lions of Liberty Christian. The hitting errors, combined with the absence of top hitter Rashaya Kyle, were the biggest factors in the Giants' loss.

Mississinewa
Coming off of their hard fought loss to Delta, the Indians bounced back with a three set sweep of CIC foe Elwood on Wednesday night (25-19, 25-23, 25-22). Halle Planck and Erika Foy combined for 23 kills and six blocks, while Kenzie Skeens dished out 36 assists in the win.

Oak Hill
The Oak Hill Golden Eagles started off the week with a match against Nebraska-commit Megan Miller and the Alexandria-Monroe Tigers. Despite a valiant effort, the Golden Eagles were defeated in three sets (9-25, 19-25, 16-25). Oak Hill bounced back on Thursday with a four-set win over Southern Wells (25-17, 18-25, 25-11, 25-17.) Ashlyn Transier had a huge night for the Golden Eagles, finishing with 20 kills and 22 digs, while Rachel Arens dished out 36 assists in the victory.

Unfortunately, the Golden Eagles could not keep up the momentum, as they were defeated by the Tippecanoe Valley Vikings in four sets (12-25, 19-25, 25-23, 13-25) on Monday night.

With the loss, the Golden Eagles dropped to 9-11 on the season.

mun was proud of both how his team played from start to finish.

"I love my guys [because] they have never given up on me," Ozmun said. "We talked about it at halftime, [about not giving up,] and I don't think our guys did. They have some athletes that are faster, some linemen that are quicker, and these are the results. As far as my guys go, I'm not disappointed—I'm disappointed in the result, and I'm disappointed for them—but I'm not disappointed in them. I've got a great group, and I believe that every single one of them is going to come back on Monday and be ready to go."

Mississinewa/Madison-Grant
The Mississinewa Indians, coming off their tough loss to the Eastbrook Panthers, dominated on Friday night from start to finish in a 69-0 win over Central Indiana Conference and Grant County rival Madison-Grant.

The Indians started off the game with a kickoff return touchdown, and after that, it was smooth sailing.
