Faulk gets GOP nod for prosecutor

Grant County voters have handed the Republican nomination for county prosecutor to Rodney Faulk, turning aside incumbent Jim Luttrull, Jr., who has held the office since 2003. The final tally was close, with only 182 votes separating the two (3,661-3,479)out of more than 7,000 cast.

"It was worth it in the end," Faulk said in an interview on WBAT after the results were announced. He pointed to "a grass roots movement" from people who "wanted to see a change in the office" as the main reason for his victory. "A lot of ordinary people said 'Change needs to happen," Faulk said.

Faulk will stand in the general election in the fall; as of now there is no Democrat on the ballot to run against him. Asked if the Democrats would put up an opponent, Faulk replied: "I don't anticipate that they would," noting that there were many in the Democrat Party who had supported him in on the Democrat side made that more likely.

The crossover voting was one of "a combination of factors" that led to his defeat, Luttrull said, adding, "I'm a much better prosecutor than I am a politician." He thanked his supporters and said, "I just wish we had been more successful." He added that there had been "a lot of rhetoric" during the campaign "about 'us against them,' and I found that to be very unfortunate."

"Jim Luttrull had the support of the establishment," said Ed Breen in analyzing the race. "Rodney

Thousands take Walk of Hope in support of Cancer Services

by Loretta Tappan

Cancer Services of Grant County held its largest one-day annual fundraising event, the Walk of Hope, on May 4 in downtown Marion, adjacent to the First Friday's Riverfront

The one-mile walk started in front of the Riverside Credit Union at Washington and Spencer streets near the Mississinewa River, where there are Cancer Ribbon Trees decorated with ribbons for strength, hope, and a celebration of life.

Thousands of walkers filled downtown Marion last Friday evening to raise money for Cancer Services.

As of Tuesday afternoon, Executive Director Jennifer Lane-Riefler said the participant count was around 3,400 participants and counting. Registration started with a kick-off party in January. Walkers participated both virtually and in-

How to handle upsets? 'It takes a whole lotta Jesus'

here have been many people who have influenced me over the course of my life. I have tried to determine why each one has made a difference in me. Is it because of their mannerisms, their looks, or is it their words? Today I have one of those individuals in mind: the Deacon Johnny Clayton, who has appealed to me like no other person I have ever met. I can't narrow it down to one thing, because there are many.

The Deacon has helped many people over the course of his life. He has given willingly of all he has to help those who can't help themselves. It is obvious when you help others along life's road that there are always bumps along the way. It was just recently. in a Bible study, that the Deacon was sharing about an individual he had helped. This person in turn went about trashing the Deacon, by sharing untruths. It was clear to see that the Deacon loved this man, and it deeply hurt him to get such treatment in return. Now, don't get me wrong, I don't believe he helped the man so that he could get something in return, but it still hurt. It was at this point the Deacon shared a phrase I will never forget. He said: "It takes a whole lot of Jesus" to be able to deal with those things and go on

Wow! "A whole lot of Jesus." As I pondered that thought, my mind began working. This would make a great sermon. There is no doubt that we have all been wronged at one time or another. The natural thing to do is to retaliate as a means of defending ourselves. Is that what the Lord wants? I really don't think so. There is a lot of truth to Johnny's statement. It doesn't have to be in a down time that we need a lot of Jesus; we need Him all the time! It is because of Jesus' love, mercy, and grace that Johnny Clayton is where he is today. It is obvious that his life exemplifies a whole lot of Jesus. He always tells me, "Preacher, I'm happy," and my response is always, "I hate happy people." He has brought lots of joy to me and to our entire fellowship by the way he presents himself. The Deacon Johnny Clayton will celebrate his birthday December 1. I think he will be 93, and he is still working for the Lord. He still goes into the jails and the prisons helping anyone he can. He has made this his job for 45 years. The reason this has happened is because of "A whole lot of Jesus." Life is hard, sometimes even unfair, but it still goes on. We all have a choice what we will make of the road we travel. We can choose to take the high road, helping others like a Good Samaritan, or we can travel

Next, the walk began with a balloon release to remember those lost. both of them passed from cancer in 2010. We all three had cancer at the same time. It's a hard battle to fight." Knight also started volunteering and hosting bake sales for Cancer Services throughout the year.

Sarah Schrader Persinger, of Marion and Team Darnell, shared: "I was inspired to walk and to help organize a team in honor of my mother. Darnell Schrader. She enjoyed being involved in the walk for many years and was always an enthusiastic participant no matter the weather, one of many examples of her brave determination. We lost Darnell in February of this year, but she was at this Friday's walk in spirit, encouraging our big pink mob the whole way! I believe that she would be so proud that Team Darnell was chosen as the recipient of the 2018 Walk of Hope Spirit Award! Sonya Fetterhoff, of Gas City and Team Clownin' Around for a Cure, said: "I have been doing the walk since 2013. Clownin' Around for A Cure received the largest team award in 2014 and 2015, including one spirit award. I have many people I love that have been affected by cancer, that is why I walk every year. Our walk shirts every year have the names of all of our loved ones that have been over 300 adults named on the

on the front. As the team captain of the clowns, I feel it is important to honor the memories of the ones we lost, the ones who have survived and the ones who are still in the fight of their life. It is such a great community event where ily that have had cancer touch their lives in one way or another. I enjoy the walk, and it makes me feel a bit of pride to be doing something for people that is bigger than me." According to the American Cancer Society, there will be an estimated 1,735,350 new cancer cases diagnosed, of which, 37,250 will be in the state of Indiana. And, they project 609,640 cancer deaths f you look it up, you'll find that the movie "Winning," a ∟ not-very-good movie tor Speedway and starring the late Paul Newman, was made in 1969. Not true. It all began in 1968, this month in 1968--May--back when "30 days in May" still had real meaning and two weekends of Time Trials and the snake pit and Carburetion Day.

We are, of course, in this, the half-century year since so many things happened--King, Kennedy Chicago--and we shall pay attention to the seriousness of them as warranted. But there were some lighter days during that time, too. Days like the June afternoon we all trekked down to the Speedway to be in the movies; well, movie, singular. The filming of the Newman movie and our chance to be part of the crowd.

But we're getting ahead of ourselves.

Paul Newman was married to Joanne Woodward. the brilliant Academy Award-winning actress who won her Oscar for her performance in "Three Faces of Eve." Her aunt was a prominent Marion resident, the late May Jane Langrall, who lived in a lovely home halfway up the hill in the 500

But back to the Speedway. Newman wanted to make an auto racing movie. Indeed, it was the making of "Winning" that got him into auto racing in a serious way as both a entourage: Newman; Woodward, who co-starred with him in the film; Robert Wagner; director Jim Goldstone; and a bunch of production people all came to the Speedway. A lot of film work was being done to assure the movie people would have what they needed to make the movie: Cameras were mounted on cars, a lot of footage was shot around the Speedway. Newman and Wagner even attended drivers' meetings prior to the race. When the movie came out the next year, Newman was driving a replica of the car that Bobby Unser had driven to the winner's circle on that though--after the real race people had vacated Indy for the season--that the serious business of making "Winning" began. On one particular weekend--I don't recall exactly when-there was a general call for people of all sorts to come to the track. We went. Everyone was milling around, including Newmar in racing togs, but riding a small motorcycle up and down pit row. Eventually, someone on the public address system instructed everyone on the grounds to assemble in Section something-orother, front row to top row in the grandstand, shoved In May of '68, the whole in together like we were among the quarter-million there on race day. We all did as instructed. We were told to watch the cars on the track as though there was a race, which there

The movie people zipped back and forth on trucks with buckets and decks attached. People with bullhorns and clipboards were everywhere. Get in closer together, tighter, we were told. We did.

Cars went past, but not very fast and not very far. Again. And again. And finally a "thank you all very much" and we all went some long-time umpires are no longer behind the plate or on the bases. Some are retiring, but many others have simply chosen not to return for another season. The Indiana High School Athletic Association (IHSAA) licenses umpires each year. Unfortunately, the number of umpires is declining. Last year there were 1,745 officials licensed to umpire baseball, but that number dropped to 1,615 this year to call all of varsity and JV games around the state.

"As we survey our officials, the number one reason they leave the profession--it is NOT the lack of financial gain, it is NOT the time spent away from home, it is NOT the travel required...it is the consistently poor treatment our officials receive from parents and patrons that cause them to relinquish their licenses," Sandra Walker, IHSAA assistant commissioner, said. "Assistance with that issue would solve our lack of qualified officials' issue," she added. "We encourage everyone to be part of the solution!"

Umpires receive $60-65 for JV games and $75-80 for varsity contests. Chanse Young, athletic director at Mississinewa, has used Randy Hisner, Rex Mihm, Brian Elliott, and Jeff Green on several occasions, but agrees it's getting harder to find umpires each year.

"Umpires are a little near and dear to my heart, since I umpired baseball for 14 years prior to taking this job," Ryan Plovick, Madison-Grant athletic director, said. "M-G is a little unique anymore, because we still continue to schedule our own officials. Many schools are using an assigner, which I have stayed away from using to date. This makes it somewhat difficult when we need officials after a rescheduled game, but we haven't run into any issues "My goal is to use only Sectional level officials for varsity games," he said. "If an official does not apply for the tournament, or has no interest in advancing, I try not to assign them. That doesn't always happen, but that would be my first preference. Normally umpires are hired a year in advance and I already have 90% of the (umpiring) schedule filled for next spring."

for next spring."
The baseball officials I like to use vary, but I try to only schedule an official no more than twice a season," Plovick said. "With 8-12 home games a year, probably 15-16 different umpires will work throughout a season. It has not been too difficult finding umpires this year, because I had most of them scheduled before the end of last season. The difficulties come from rainouts and rescheduled contests."

Week of May 9-15 2018

Because umpires accept contracts from a variety of schools, when rainouts occur, they may already have a game to officiate on the rescheduling dates selected. As a result, umpires working JV games or rookies may get an opportunity to work some of these rescheduled games.

Sandra Walker said, "We are working on the recruitment of officials on a variety of fronts. The National Guard is one avenue by which we feel we can create a Win-Win. The Indiana Guard men and women are part time, or retired, searching for part-time employment outside of their Guard duties.

"Officiating offers flexible hours with a service to young people and their communities," she added. "This is very familiar territory for our 13,000+ National Guard men and women across the state of Indiana.

"We also have recruitment initiatives across all 24 of our Officials' Associations;

Renbarger revisits Oak Hill's championship

When the clock read 0.00 in the Class 2A state championship basketball game back on March 24. the celebration was on for the Oak Hill Golden Fagles. David Arens threw the ball up in the air as he was mobbed at half court by his teammates, while the Oak Hill crowd erupted into cheers of pure joy and bliss. After that. the Golden Eagles received their first place medals, and the state championship trophy that will forever be on display right outside of Oak Hill high school's basketball court.

Kevin Renbarger, in his 13th year at the helm, did what no other Oak Hill head boys basketball coach had done before him: win a state championship. The 2017-2018 Oak Hill Golden Eagles became the first boys basketball team in school history to win a state title, and the first team to win a state championship since Oak Hill's football team completed the same feat

To reach that peak, Oak Hill had to spend some time in the

The Golden Eagles won three straight Sectional championships from 1960-1962. but they never advanced past the Regional. Monte Towe, who went on to win an NCAA college basketball championship with North Carolina State in 1974, helped lead the Golden Eagles to the Semi-State game in 1971, where they were defeated by Elkhart. The Golden Eagles would not reach the Semi-State game again for 30 years, but, once again, it was the same result:

an Oak Hill loss. In his tenure at Oak Hill, Renbarger has also experienced his fair share of crushing losses, two of which came in the last two years. In the 2016 Regional final at Lapel High School, the host Bulldogs came away with the victory on a last-second shot, stunning the Golden Eagles and using that momentum to carry them to a state title. Last year, Oak Hill did not make it out of the Sectional, losing in the semifinal to the Southwood Knights.

Using those two losses as motivation, the Golden Eagles worked tirelessly throughout the offseason to hone their craft, and it certainly did not go unnoticed by their head for the kids was putting in just a little bit more," Renbarger said. "What is that one extra thing you can give that you didn't give us last year that could have pushed us over the top? That was the primary focus.

"You have to give the kids credit. The amount of time they spent in the gym this past summer was unprecedented in regards to kids I've had over the last 20 years at Oak

Against Frankton, the Golden Eagles threw the game away with some costly furnovers and questionable decisions with the basketball. In the Hall of Fame Classic. Oak Hill had a 16-point against Floyd Central, only to blow it and lose by five points in overtime

But the Golden Eagles did not panic in those rough patches of the season. Instead, they focused on playing their style of basketball rather than listening to all of the outside

"At that moment, when we were going through some of those rough periods, people were talking about these kids having a hard time dealing with the expectation. I refused to believe that in the moment, but if you look back and reflect on the way that we were playing very early on and the way we played later, the difference was probably a relief of a little bit of that pressure."

Along with that, Renbarger believed that by playing teams like Lawrence North, New Castle, Floyd Central, and Covington Catholic, the Golden Eagles would be pre-

M-G has seven-game streak snapped, OH wins reach five

After a nightmarish ending in the Grant Four tournament, the Eastbrook Panthers did not have much of an answer for Grant County rival Madison-Grant, who scored in every inning in an 11-1 run-rule victory on Tuesday

Leading by one run against Mississinewa on Saturday morning, errors and miscues allowed the Indians to score nine runs on eight hits in the top of the seventh inning

On Tuesday, a four-run first inning by the Argylls set the tone for the rest of the game, as the Panthers' only run came after the game was well out of reach.

After some excellent efforts in the past week, two big losses have the Panthers searching for answers.

"All the mistakes we made against Mississinewa in the Grant Four were all correctable, so we went over those in practice." Eastbrook Head Coach Harold Coates said. "Unfortunately, we had more errors tonight--they were just routine plays. It's no secret that Madison-Grant is a good softball team. When you have Maddi Evans pitching and the top of that lineup hitting the way they are, you can't make five or six mistakes and expect to be in the ball game."

Coates thinks that multiple issues are causing the team's mixture of things," Coates said. "Some of the girls might be losing a little bit of confidence, and some of the girls aren't as focused as they need to be. It's an overall team issue. Everything we are doing is correctable. We just have to get on the same page and start making

"The IHSAA has partnered with several colleges and universities to offer officiating classes to their students," Walker said. "This is a great way for college students to earn some extra cash, especially if they are interested in pursuing careers in education, coaching or sports administration. The IHSAA provides the materials and testing platforms for those institutions free of charge in an effort to recruit and retain new officials on an annual basis."

"We will couple new officials with local officials' associations that work very closely with our office regarding training; in-person meetings, online training sessions and field work via clinics," Walker said. Overall, Ms. Walker would have been very pleased with the way Grant County fans have conducted themselves at games this year. There have been some questionable calls, some appeals made, but I have not seen a player, coach or fan kicked out of a game during my watch. Good job, Grant County. Every year the IHSAA

The greatest hoopster

he argument has reared its ugly head again: Who is the great basketball player of all time?

I have always argued that it's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, and here is why:

In high school, when he was known as Lew Alcindor, he lost just one game and led Power Memorial High School in New York to four straight city titles.

He went to college at UCLA, where he led the Bruins to an 88-2 record and three NCAA championships over three years (freshmen were not allowed to play on the varsity team back then, or he probably would have had four).

Finally, he won six NBA titles with the Milwaukee Bucks and the Los Angeles Lakers. (It was after his first NBA title in 1971, at the age of 24, that he took the name Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.)

That's 13 titles in high school, college and the pros. In addition, he is the all-time leader in points scored (38,387) and wins (1,074).

Now that, to me, easily trumps Michael Jordan, who won only one NCAA title and, like Jabbar, six NBA titles. (By the way, Jordan ranks fourth--behind Jabbar, Karl Malone and Kobe Bryant--on the all-time scoring list with 32,292. He had 706 career wins.)

What Jordan has on his side is the NBA hype machine. When Michael did his magic with the Bulls, the NBA was trying to pull itself out of a ratings slump, and every time Jordan played you were told he was the greatest of all time.

Now along comes Lebron James, a 6-8 version of Jordan, who quickly is making fans forget about the Jordan hype machine as they watch a power forward do some pretty amazing things on the basketball floor. He is working on nearly a decade of playing in every NBA finals, although he has won only three NBA rings.

Many would also point to the old-timer, Bill Russell. All he did was win two NCAA titles with the San Francisco Dons and then lead the Boston Celtics to 11 NBA titles.

I haven't even mentioned George Mikan yet. He was the first superstar in the NBA, winning five titles in the 1940s and '50s with the Minneapolis Lakers (way before they moved to Los Angeles), and Ervin "Magic" Johnson, who led the (Los Angeles by then) Lakers to five NBA titles and re-invented the position of point guard.

Finally, was anyone able to stay with Shaquille O'Neill in his prime? For the four years in which he won NBA titles no one could even begin to guard the big guy.

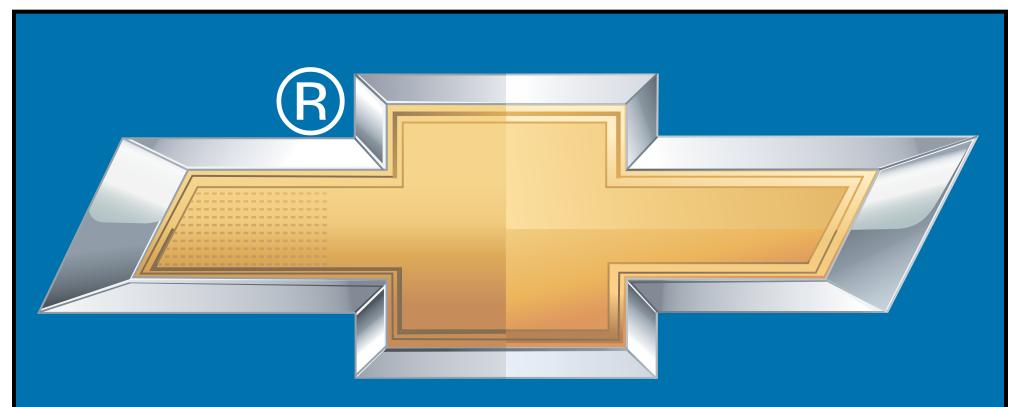

I guess beauty is on the eye of the beholder, and many reading this article probably never saw some of the aforementioned players.

For me, it's still Kareem. Announcer after announcer referred to his "sky hook" as the greatest weapon in the NBA. All of this is a fun conversation to have while the NBA playoffs are in full swing.
