Students tour MI GM plant

Editor's note: In May, Jeff Harris, owner of Matthews Buick, won a United Way auction item to have four people spend the day with Alicia Boler, executive vice president of Global Manufacturing of GM, and tour the company's plant near Detroit. Harris decided the opportunity he purchased may better serve aspiring young women at Marion High School. Harris contacted Mark Fauser at MHS, who reached out to Bobbie Owensby, MHS teacher and community leader. Owensby agreed and accompanied two excellent students, Azira Fisher and Leilanu Jackson, on the trip. Matthews provided a car to make the trip to the Lake Orion, MI, GM plant last week. Azira Fisher agreed to write down her thoughts on the trip for The News Herald:

Nick McKinley and State Farm Insurance of Marion are helping to prepare Grant County elementary students for the 2018-2019 school year.

Together with his assistant, Luke Brautigam, McKinley has delivered pre-sharpened No. 2 pencils to four of the county's 11 elementary schools, including Allen, Riverview, Kendall, and most recently, Converse Elemen-

All told, 4,000 pencils will be distributed, which is roughly the number of elementary students in the county.

The initiative's purpose is to make sure every student has easy access to pencils throughout the school day in case of loss or wear, while also helping teachers save their hard-earned money.

School Board taps Gault and Salamo for vacant seats

by Sean Douglas

After interviewing nine candidates in a special session that took place on July 23, the Marion Community Schools board appointed Dana Gault and Serafina Salamo as its newest members on July 24 during its regular meeting.

Gault and Salamo will hold the seats vacated by Cathy Moritz and Greg Kitts, and will serve until November, when new board members are elected

The board considered eight other candidates as well, including Recca Black, Nick McKinley, Nikki Noffsinger, Lindsay Martinez Schrader, Nathan Sweeny, Javon Washington, Bruce Weatherspoon, and Aaron Wilkson. Board President Todd Nicholson and the rest of the board were impressed with Gault's and Salamo's backgrounds, as well as how they handled themselves during the interview process.

"Just based on their accomplishments, how we felt that we

The new Arby's restaurant, located across the bypass from the new Holiday Inn, celebrated its grand opening with a ribbon cutting ceremony last Wednesday morning,. Marion Mayor Jess Alumbaugh was present for the event, along with members of the Marion Chamber of Commerce. Spokesperson Tom Browne said that the new facility had been several years in the making. The old building, located just one lot away, had been remodeled five or six times over the past few years, and the original plan was to remodel it once again, but, Browne said, they decided to build a new facility instead, one that was more modern and efficient. Construction was completed earlier in July.

day. This past weekend had the opportunity to visit the Orion GM Plant with Mrs. Owensby, Jeff Harris, and Lisa Weaver. At first, I had no idea what to expect. I thought the facilities would be loud, dirty, and uninviting to guests, but, to my surprise, the staff was very welcoming and adamant about our safety. During this experience, GM gave us a quality time and care that the company takes pride in. The tour showcased how a car is made from a role model to so many start to finish. There are so many things that one does not notice when thinking about a car. I never thought about the harness, which is the brains of the car. It is all hidden by the "pretty" things we look at instead.

We got to see how robots work together with the staff to make life on the job a little easier. There were cars floating in the air. It was probably a conveyor belt, but floating cars sound cooler.

We even got to view the autonomous vehicle being made. This car would need no hands on driving, but would self cruise with only an emergency brake. These are acturoad. Although the au- the Orion GM staff.

gave us a great tour with a ton of new information. We had the joy of meeting with Executive Vice President Alicia Boler-Davis. She told us about her duties in running multiple plants across the nation. I was shocked to hear how humbly she spoke of herself. As a woman with so much responsibility, I could only imagine how easy it would be to get lost in the midst of it all. Davis is young girls. She shows how women can go out into any workforce and make a name for themselves. This is an idea that sometimes gets lost amidst the commotion of society I am so thankful to have had this wonderful opportunity to explore new fields of study. It was my great pleasure to be given the opportunity to be able to talk with so many intelligent individuals in important places. This was a great experience that I am so happy I was able to be a part of. Thank you Jeff Harris. Alicia Davis Mrs Owally being tested on the ensby, Lisa Weaver, and something to give back to the community," McKinley said. "This year, we were brainstorming and we realized some of our own kids come home sometimes and need pencils. With teachers a lot of times paying for these out of their own pocket, we wanted to alleviate this expenditure on some of the teachers. Kids usually start the year with two pencils. But as they use them, break them, or lose them, the teachers will have pencils readily available in their break room or their lounge that they can grab pretty quickly." "It's just something we wanted to do for the communities," Brautigam added. "Kids are our future, and we wanted Nick McKinley and Luke Brautigam show off the pencils they're to make sure that their learning giving out to all of the lementary students in the county. experience is a good one." The word "emotion" en-

The Scriptural text is qualified, "Be angry, and yet do not sin." There are times when anger is appropriate; however, the problem arises when anger controls us instead of us controlling it. We should never let it come to the point of sin. The experiences of life ought to help us know if we are even coming close to shouldn't "let the sun go down on our wrath." You may be wondering, what does this mean? Just what it says. Prolonged anger simply gives the devil an opportunity to work in our lives. He wants us to be angry to the fullest extent. How do we deal with this issue? Don't prolong anger into the night. In Paul's day, the day ended at the setting of the sun. We should never sleep on wrong feelings. Forgiveness must be in our hearts at day's end. The lack of forgiveness reveals the pride of life that must be Another preventative is we must not express our anger in such a way that we are weakened and the devil gets an upper hand on us. sure it is a tough pill for some to swallow. Anger doesn't have to control us. We can actually overcome anything through Christ. I am sure of one thing after this series: when I leave this world I don't want to be remembered for my temper. As much and often as I fail, I would like to be remembered for the love of Jesus. Three harsh Pence biographies will garner attention tention? It comes from Sunday's New York Times piece by Frank Bruni, his editorial page column titled simply Mike Pence, Holy Terror":

Paul stresses that we

"There are problems with impeaching Donald Trump. A big one is the holy terror waiting in the wings," he writes. "That would be Mike Pence, who mirrors the boss more than you realize. He's also self-infatuated. Also a bigot. Also a liar. Also cruel. "To that brimming potpourri he adds two ingredients that Trump doesn't genuinely possess: the conviction that he's on a mission from God and a determination to mold the entire nation in the shape of his own faith, a regressive, repressive version of Christianity. Trade Trump for Pence and you go from kleptocracy to theocracy.'

Got to admit, nothing wishy-washy. You know where he stands. The cause of this little outburst is his reading of early pages from a book about Pence that's to be out this week. The book, "The Shadow President: The Truth About Mike Pence," by journalists Michael D'Antonio and Peter Eisner, is one of three that are going to focus on Pence and his agenda in the days and weeks very soon.

for getting our at- and a whole lot closer to home comes also this week from Andrea Neal, a natural-born Hoosier whom many of us have known for, well, for a very long time. Maureen Groppe at the Indianapolis Star got a look at this volume and gives us the summary:

"A new biography of Mike Pence opens by calling him a paradox and closes by describing his 'biggest enigma' as vice president." Groppe write of Neal's book—a volume titled "Pence: The Path to Power.'

"How could a biblically based Christian so readily align himself with a man prone to flout the most recognized rules of civility?"

Groppe hedges on whether or not she found the answer: "While Neal leaves the answer to that question to the reader, the biography provides a good overview of the path the politically ambitious Pence took to get to his current position.

Yet a third book focusing on Pence is coming soon from Tom LoBianco, late of the Associated Press here in Indiana. The name may be familiar because it was he who, as a young reporter, took the first serious look at how Wayne Seybold was running the mayor's office ing heavily, he does have a natural role and it is extremely political in this White House." No date yet on when LoBianco's book will be available.

Certainly the book that will get the most attention is the harshest. That's the way we are with our politics and politicians. Give us the dirt and we'll chase it.

Anway, in their book, D'Antonio and Eisner are pretty harsh, even if factually correct.

Says the Times columnist, "the book persuasively illustrates what an ineffectual congressman Pence was, apart from cozying up to the Koch brothers, Betsy DeVos and other rich Republican donors; the clumsiness and vanity of his one term as governor of Indiana; the strong possibility that he wouldn't have won re-election; his luck in being spared that humiliation by the summons from Trump, who needed an outwardly bland, intensely religious character witness to muffle his madness and launder his sins; and the alacrity with which he says whatever Trump needs him understanding is that this is

Oak Hill celebrates state title, passes out rings

Saturday was a special night for the Oak Hill community, as Head Coach Kevin Renbarger and the 2017-2018 Class 2A state champion Golden Eagles, in the midst of family, friends, and basketball alumni, received their state championship rings, etching themselves into basketball immortality.

However, it went much deeper than that.

It was not just a celebration of the first state championship basketball team in school history. It was a celebration of the history of Oak Hill basketball. Led by Head Coach Phil McCarter, the Golden Eagles won three sectionals in the first three years of the school's existence, establishing a winning culture that has been passed down throughout the 59-year history of Oak Hill. Before this season, the Golden Eagles had won 25 county championships, 17 conference titles, eight sectionals, and two regionals. Yet for all of their success, one goal remained elusive until March 24, 2018: a state

And though they eventually reached the top, they had to spend some time at the bottom.

In the single-class basketball era, Monte Towe led the Golden Eagles to the semi-state game in 1971, where they lost to Elkhart. The Golden Eagles returned to the semistate in 2001, but again they were defeated.

More recently, in 2016, the Golden Eagles dropped a heartbreaker on a lastsecond shot to the Lapel Bulldogs, who went on to win the state championship that season. But, as all Hill players, coaches, and good teams do, they over- managers. We all lived our ing the best campaign in school history with a 56-44 victory over the Forest Park Rangers at Bankers Life Fieldhouse.

McCarter, now in his late 80s, looked back on his time at Oak Hill with fondness. "It's always fun for me to return to Oak Hill,' he said. "I spent the most enjoyable years of my life teaching and coaching here. I would like to thank the Oak Hill community, faculty, and especially the players who made my tenure successful." McCarter stressed the word "togetherness" in his brief speech, stating that everybody, coaches included, worked as one cohesive unit during his coaching career, which led to consistent success. He hopes that will continue in the future. "The players, coaches, students, and the entire community will cherish this accomplishment forever," McCarter said. "I would challenge Oak Hill to continue their togetherness."

Jarrad Odle, the all-time leading scorer in Oak Hill history with 1,465 points, a member of the 2002 national champion runner-up Indiana University Hoosiers, and the Golden Eagles' color commentator on the radio, spoke briefly on what this state championship win means to the alumni and the community. "I am a little jealous," Odle said. "Not a bad jealous, but a jealousy where I wish that I had accomplished something like that. But in all sincerity, that jealousy turned into complete pride. This group of men has brought so much pride and joy to many generations of Oak School?

While Odle and his family do not live in Grant County anymore, his heart will always be in Converse. "Even though I am raising my kids in a neighboring county and a neighboring school system, I will never waver from calling Oak Hill home," Odle said.

Towe, who went on to be the starting point guard on the 1974 NCAA national champion Nortjh Carolina State Wolfpack team and played briefly in both the NBA and the ABA, talked about how his tenure as a Golden Eagle shaped him into the man he is today.

"I always wanted to play for Oak Hill, that's all I ever wanted to do," Towe said. 'I was able to go on and do some other things, but it all started here with the foundation that I received academically, socially, and athletically. There's no better school. I've been in a lot of schools, but I've never been in a better high school than Oak Hill High in the state of Indiana with 778 victories, started his illustrious career at Oak Hill. A 1961 graduate of the school, Keefer went 61-26 from 1972-1976 before moving on to Lawrence North High School.

During his speech, he talked about how winning a state championship takes some blind luck at times, but more importantly, it takes coaches, players, and managers working in unison with one another. "This group had to play as one," Keefer said. "Renbarger had to pull them together as one. Not five, not six, not seven, not 12, but one. When you get them as one, you can get it done. And they did it." Last, but certainly not least, Renbarger spoke at length about his state championship basketball team. After a disappointing end to the previous season, expectations for the Golden Eagles had never been

Eastbrook

While the boys soccer program is still relatively new at Eastbrook High School, they have quickly become one of the premier teams in Grant County, and 2017 was one of their best years yet.

Led by an aggressive offense, a daunting group of midfielders, and a top-flight goalkeeper, the Panthers finished with a 14-4-1 record, advancing to the regional final before losing to eventual state runner-up Fort Wayne Concordia.

While they lost players like Stephen Lakanen and John Velasquez to graduation, much of Eastbrook's talented roster is returning in

Throughout the offseason, along with the usual drills and conditioning, Head Coach Adam Hallis and the Panthers have worked quite a bit on team bonding, looking to find that flawless harmony that made them so successful a vear ago.

"A big focus this offseason has been chemistry," Hallis said. "While we still have our top three midfielders coming back, and we have a lot of guys with experience, we still have to mesh. It's just getting a feel for another group of guys." Along with that, while they were one of the top soccer teams a season ago, Hallis wanted his team to set their sights on what's ahead rather than behind. "The other focus is realizing that it is a new season with new challenges," Hallis continued. "We can enjoy what happened last year, but we need to be ready for this year."

The Panthers ran most of their offensive sets through the middle of the field in 2017, and with Noah Ross, Andrew Sieglein, and Zane Shilts all returning, that trend should continue. Ross led the Panthers with 12 goals season, while Shilts and Siegelin combined for 10. "Those three, because of their experience, will set Gray, Riggs, Spurgeon, and the tone for us," Hallis said. "A lot of what we do runs through our midfield, and we like to control it with those goals in 18 games. three players."

just seven goals in 19 games. After playing club ball this summer, Hallis is impressed from what he has seen from his senior goalkeeper. "He looks good," Hallis said. "He's got confidence, his distribution has gotten better, and he has just built off of last season. He has the pect him to be just as solid as he was last year and have a great season for us." The back line was equally as effective, keeping the ball out of the box and not putting Huber in dangerous situations. Conner Rakes and Lube Abston return to anchor the back end, while Ramzzy Bowser, Nathan Brainer, and Andrew Bruner will also look to make contributions.

On paper, the Panthers have one of the top rosters in the area, and Hallis believes that his team will be successful once again in 2018.

"I just want it to be beautiful soccer," Hallis concluded. "I think that with the talent that we have and the experience that we have, if we play the game the way it should be played, I think we have a chance to win a lot of Caleb Oliver, Jared Hutchens, Jonas Reed, RJ Macomber, Seven Gray, Christian Riggs, Jalen Spurgeon, Christian Lemens, Tyler Anger, Connor Moritz, and Jose Esquivel were all major contributors on one of the most talented soccer teams in recent Marion history.

Unfortunately for the Giants, all of those young men were seniors, and none of them will be back for the 2018 season.

Macomber scored 18 goals for the Giants, while Reed and Anger combined for 14.

But head coach Jorge Berry, heading into his 13th year at the helm, is not worried in the slightest. In fact, he is incredibly confident in his young team heading into the 2018 season despite all of the turnover.

"Unfortunately, it's going to be hard to replace the seniors," Berry said. "but, I honestly think we could be respect of his defense. I ex- a tad better than what we were last year. The reason I say this is because we will be more technically strong on the ball, and I think everybody is going to have a strong commitment to what we do. It should be really interesting.

> The Giants have always had talent throughout Berry's tenure, but this year, his players have a high soccer IQ to go along with that talent. Because of this, he believes that his team will be more technically sound, which will lead to sustained success.

"I just think our touch will be a lot better overall," Berry continued. "We have always had the physical presence with the Macombers and the Boyds and the other people who could run over the years. Now, we have kids who are thinking about the game and not always relying on their athletic ability. Hopefully, we will see a lot of possession."

While the Giants lost a lot of their goal scoring with Macomber's departure, they have a plethora of young players ready to step up, including J.D. Fagan, Kyle Coryea, and Kevin Guy. Seth Sheren has put in a lot of work this offseason and is ready for a bigger workload, while Devante Boyd and Isak Lagerkvist look to be two of Marion's top scoring

After two years of recruiting, building, and developing a program, the IWU Wildcats are set to play the first game in school history on September 1 against long-time rival Taylor University in one of the most highly anticipated events in recent memory.

Head Coach Jordan Langs has worked tirelessly since being hired in building the program from the ground up, but Eric Terrazas has also been a crucial piece of the puzzle in the team's formative years.

Along with being IWU's offensive coordinator, Terrazas is also the recruiting coordinator. Over the past two seasons he has traveled across the country, giving potential recruits a glimpse into the life of an IWU football player.

"We set out to accomplish a few things early in recruiting," Terrazas said. "The first thing we wanted to accomplish was to get the 'IWU football brand' in and around as many states, schools, coaches and athletes as possible. Our staff worked extremely hard these past few years to be in as many places as possible. Along with presenting We truly believe that we our brand, we also set out can bring in highly talented

While Terrazas and his staff certainly set out to find talented players that would make the Wildcats a better football team, they also wanted to find young men who were multi-faceted in other areas of life, including academics and their faith.

"The young men that we looked for in recruiting were players that, first and foremost, fit who we are and what we stand for," Terrazas said. "We wanted young men who wanted to be challenged and who wanted to grow in their faith, all while receiving a phenomenal degree and playing for a football program that won't sacrifice excellence in what we do on the football field.

not play a single football game in 2016 and 2017, the team certainly prepared as if they did. Without the stress of having to gameplan for an opponent each week, the Wildcat focused on improving their fundamentals, increasing their strength, and grasping a deeper, more intimate knowledge of the game of football.

"I believe we did a great job laying the foundation for what we want this program to be," Terrazas said. "Our players trained and prepared with expectations that most first-year freshmen don't have to deal with We grew and matured both on and off the field. I truly believe we grew up quickly because of the expectations we put on the group of young men we brought in this first year."

After watching his offense grow and develop over the past two seasons. Terrazas believes that he has the makings of something special at his disposal.

"We have a large group of players that have stood out over the past few years," Terrazas said. "We have a group of young men that we are extremely excited about. They have de-

Indians, unlike many of the other teams in Grant County, have not worked as hard at honing their craft in recent off-seasons. This summer, Reel looked to change that. 'There has not been enough push to get them to work during the off-season, such as working on weights and conditioning, working with the ball on their own, and showing up to open fields to get more touches on the ball in a dynamic atmosphere," Reel said. "So, the focus in the offseason was trying to get the players to get more involved summer activities."

Colin Yoder, who led the Indians with four goals as a freshman last season, will be back, as well as Thomas Steelman, who showed flashes before missing time with injuries last season. Midfielder Andre Sallade also showed offensive prowess in limited playing time, and the Indians have a plethora of other young players looking to make their mark.

Heading into the 2018 season Reel knows that that there will be growing pains, but, he plans on helping his young team improve their technique, as well as learn more about the game of soccer, so that they can continue to grow as the season progresses.

"The biggest goal is to improve their technical skills first," Reel concluded. "Once I see an improvement there, my goal is to teach them tactics of the game which they have never been taught before. I believe the routine in the past was just show up and play. I plan on teaching them the technical/tactical aspects of the game so we have a bet-

Garverick has stressed the importance of ball possession throughout offseason workouts, along with helping them establish chemistry with one another.

"My goal is to have a team that is in control of the game," Garverick said. "The best way to control the game is to have possession of the ball. We want to be aggressive in gaining possession, and assertive and purposeful with the ball once we win it. We have some good players, and I want to put those players in the best positions to use their individual talent and creativity to score goals.

"We definitely lost a lot of talent—we had a great senior group that did a lot of good things—but we are reloading, and definitely have some returning talent as well as some vounger players who have a lot of talent and are eager to show just how good they are. We've really wanted the new team to get more comfortable playing with each other understanding each other's strengths and weaknesses, and figuring out how we can maximize the

Just two seasons ago, the Golden Eagles finished as sectional champions before falling to Argos in the regional round. Last year, Oak Hill was a .500 soccer team, and at times did not play up to their potential. With key players returning and talent across the lineup, Garverick is looking for the Golden Ea-
