Old National Bank building purchased

by Loretta Tappan

Continuing the ongoing renovation of downtown Marion, local businessman Bill Reece last week purchased the two-story building at 100 S. Washington St. that formerly housed Old National Bank, with plans to open a place for business and wellness centered around yoga, acupuncture, and massage therapy. Reece is working to open the space in October of this year; a cafe with vegan options will open within six months.

Reece has already begun refurbishing the building, replacing carpet and reorganizing the former bank. In addition to conference rooms on the main level, and the large community room that will be used for yoga classes, the building will have spaces available for people interested in a short-term (three-month-one-year) lease of an office. The fully furnished offices will be complete with high-bandwidth internet, telephone lines, video conferencing, printer and copier, conference rooms, and other shared services such as a receptionist.

The cafe will have coffee, light food, vegan options, and smoothies. People on the go to classes or work will have the ability to grab

Halstead buys Marion National building

Halstead Architects has purchased the historic Marion National Bank building, the tallest building in downtown (at 402 S. Washington Street), from its private owner in California. The building has been vacant since Regions Bank terminated its lease more than three years ago.

New owner Michael Halstead, owner & founder of Halstead Architects, has plans for a mixed-use development (residential & commercial) in the seven-story building. According to a press release from the city of Marion, Halstead has already taken steps to stabilize the building and prevent further deterioration.

Taylor’s record-setting class; Giants’ Homecoming parade

TIP OF THE HAT...to Taylor University, which this weekend will set a record for its largest-ever incoming class. The school will welcome 577 new students—538 freshmen and 39 transfers. According to Steve Mortland, vice president for enrollment management at Taylor, the class of 2022 (comprised of 265 men and 273 women) surpasses the previous high of 519, set four years ago. Residence halls open Friday at 9:00 am, for Taylor’s incoming freshman and transfer students. Students from Taylor’s sophomore, junior, and senior classes will begin moving in on Saturday. A campus wide communion and prayer service is scheduled at the Odle Arena at 7 pm, Sunday. Welcome Weekend continues on Monday, August 27, with Taylor’s annual Community Plunge—a daylong event that sends hundreds of Taylor University students, staff, and faculty members into the Upland community for various cleanup and beautification projects. Night classes at Taylor begin Monday evening, and daytime classes begin on Tuesday, August 28.

WE’VE TALKED BEFORE...about substance abuse being at the top of most lists of the problems in Grant County, so it’s entirely appropriate that Ivy Tech Community College Marion is offering a new course: Problems of Substance Abuse, that is free for community members. It is also available for current Ivy Tech students to take for credit. The course, HUMS 113, will discuss the relationship between substance abuse in society and increase awareness about the issue in the Marion community. It is offered on Mondays from 6-8:50 pm at the Marion campus, located at 261 S. Commerce Drive. Dana Gault, a resident of Marion who has experience working with families in the local community, will teach the class. Gault has served on the Maternal Substance Abuse Task Force in Delaware County and the Crisis Intervention Team in Grant County.

TRADITIONS HAVE TO BEGIN...sometime, and the Marion Giants plan to begin one this year: a Homecoming parade. The school is inviting local organizations and businesses to join this year’s inaugural parade, working with the theme: “Home Sweet Homecoming.” The details need to be worked out, but the school says most of the parade will take place on 26th Street, and will start at 5 pm on September 14. The Homecoming game against Richmond starts at 7 pm. The MHS cheerleaders and the Student Senate are

THE UNITED WAY...is holding a “kitchen table-style” community listening session in order to hear from people what are their aspirations and vision for the Gas City community. It will be held at the Thompson-Ray House, 407 E. Main St., Gas City, on August 25, from 9am-12 noon. Registration is not required, but seating is limited, so the United Way encourages those who plan to attend to contact Alicia Hazelwood at 765-662-9811.

DOING GOOD

Each week, The News Herald prepares news of the good being done by individuals and organizations in Grant County for broadcast on WBAT. Here is an adaptation of the transcript of that broadcast.—Ed.

After many good years of service to the City of Marion, Doug Darga is leaving his position with the Marion Parks Department. Darga is the creator and caretaker of the fine Gardens of Matter Park that is one of the good quality-of-life places in the city. He and his wife Dawn, who volunteered countless hours to help design and build the Gardens, are moving out of Indiana. The entire city will miss both of the Dargas and all of the good things they both did throughout our community. Thank you, Dawn and Doug. We wish you smooth seas and fair skies in your next adventure.

It’s been a busy week for downtown Marion as concrete plans to develop the Old National Bank Building at First and Washington Street were revealed, and then there was an announcement that significant progress is happening with the city’s tallest building, the former Marion National Bank building at Fourth and Washington Streets that could bring it back to life.

In between them, the former bank building at Third and Washington Streets is being appraised so the county can sell it to some interested developers. This private investment interest in downtown Marion is really good news for all of us. We wish success for all of the developers and hope downtown Marion can thrive once again. Now that would be really good!

Downtown got a lift of a different kind last Saturday as the men on the IWU football team gave some “sweat equity” to three projects. Alicia Hazelwood, the CEO of Grant County United Way, has been working to connect IWU campus organizations with local non-profits and worthy causes to make our community better.

The football team did projects for the Rescue Mission, the Marion Fire Department, and the Marion Street Department from 4-6 pm last Saturday. This is a win/win situation because the players get the good feeling of helping and the organizations get a good infusion of help. Thank you to both Alicia Hazelwood and to IWU football Head Coach Jordan Langs. Go Wildcats!

There were a lot of other good activities last week that many people enjoyed. I’m referring to the Indy AirStrip Attack, The Books & Bikes Art Festival, the Motorcycle Rodeo, and Fairmount’s Old Time Camp Meeting as just a few. Good times for all of us. I hope you were able to enjoy some of them.

The good thought for this week comes from the Greek philosopher Sophocles who said, “To be doing good deeds is man’s most glorious task.”

Finding God’s blessing in nature, and at the state fair

God has blessed us with many different places to go and marvel at His beauty. It has been a privilege to have the opportunity to see places such as Alaska, Hawaii, cruising in the South, the Rocky Mountains, Canada, and a couple of log cabins along the way. I love God’s handiwork whether it is on the land or sea. I have probably been touched the most by Pearl Harbor. I wish every American could visit that historic site.

Although I have had the joy of seeing many places, last week I added a new one: The Pioneer Village at the Indiana State Fair. My brother Bob, Howard Clayton, and I drove to Indianapolis to spend the day with some dedicated friends. As we entered the village, we were amazed at all of the machinery that brought us to where we are today. At 10 am the program started with a knowledgeable man who began to tell the history of farming. Along each phase were men and women who helped the portrayal of a life very foreign to us. It all started with oxen or cattle that did the work, progressing to very primitive equipment that started the transition to farming as we know it today.

Kyle Schoeff, Duane Lynn, John Hacker, and a lot of others were involved in the program. Duane has been at the State Fair since June 28, preparing for the exhibition. Kyle ran the thrashing steam engine. He loaded the boiler with wood to build up heat to power the large thrashing machine. In those days it took 25 people to man these two machines. What an exhibition as men pitchforked bundles of wheat into the thrasher.

There were also men working to cut shaker shingles out of cedar. As these men cut the shingles, another steam engine powered a sawmill that cut large trees into beautiful oak and hickory boards. This project also involved several men and a lot of manual labor.

We also watched the blacksmiths as they worked. Next to them was a man from Kentucky who made wooden wheels. The thought of the man making spokes, spindles, and all of the accessories is absolutely amazing.

Each and every one of these men, women, and children represented something special to me—they are all volunteers. They all donate their time and their skills to provide the largest drawing card of the entire fair. The thing that amazes me most is that this entire village was the vision of one man who wanted to capture history so it would not slip away, and folks like us wouldn’t miss a blessing.

I never mentioned the carvers, spinning wheels, rug-hooking, and others. What can one person accomplish if he or she puts their mind to it? The greatest attraction of the state fair is one example.

If you haven’t been to the state fair, you are missing a real blessing. There are so many different things to see, but I only shared about one. I want to salute each and every person who works behind the scenes or on stage to make this happen. Let’s hear it for a group of great Americans!

Building, Continued from 1

Years later, Reece thought of creating a wellness professional network that is high-quality and affordable and after learning about the addictions epidemic in Grant County, he decided this was the right place to launch it.

After an introduction from a mutual friend, Marion Grant County Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Kylie Jackson and Jessy Pearson-Cheney, a victim’s assistance coordinator for Grant County, joined with Reece and started making plans to work together on ways to increase wellness in Grant County.

Said Pearson-Cheney:

“He’s got the business model and the background, and I’ve been working with those affected by trauma for many years and been teaching yoga in the community for about five years. It’s really been a good collaboration of trying to bounce ideas off each other, connecting people together, and raising awareness.”

Individuals interested in teaching yoga are invited to attend the teacher training on the weekend of October 5. Before and after-work classes begin later in October.

Other specialty yoga classes to be offered at the building include lower back pain or joint replacement therapy. “We want healing to occur for people. We want people to leave feeling substantially greater than they did when they walked through the doors,” said Pearson-Cheney.

“There are so many evidence-based studies coming out to show how much mindfulness can impact recovery and relapse prevention, especially when it’s paired with what someone is already doing. It’s really powerful. If you look six-months out, the chances that someone has relapsed are greatly diminished if they have the mindfulness piece,” said Pearson-Cheney.

During their research they found out that yoga is paired internationally with the Alcoholics Anonymous program, Twelve Step Recovery.

Building 100 South, constructed in 1974, will host Twelve Step Recovery meetings on a weekly basis specifically for people who have been affected by addiction, either their own or the addictive behavior of somebody else.

Pearson-Cheney said they want the building to become a community hub. “We’re going work really hard to be able to offer these modalities to people who might have felt that they didn’t have the resources to take a yoga class before. Everyone is going be treated really well, and we want it to be a place where people just gather because they want to be connected,” she said. “Reconnection is an integral piece of fighting addiction because in addiction you start to disconnect from your body and from other people. If you don’t reconnect with your body, which is what our classes are designed to do, and if you don’t reconnect with other people, which is what our community space is meant to do, then there’s very little chance that you’re going be able to find recovery.”

had encouraged Halstead to buy the building after learning that its sale price was drastically reduced, reportedly to $150,000. The city’s press release reported that Alumbaugh is very excited that the building is now in the arms of a proven local developer.

Early this year, Halstead also purchased from the city the historic Marks Building (at 123 E. 3rd St.), which most recently housed Beatniks. Halstead has been restoring the building and is nearly finished preparing the 3,000-square-foot main floor for a business tenant. Halstead recently moved into the second floor. The building also had a one-bedroom market-rate apartment behind Halstead’s office, which has been rented.

Marion Housing Authority has also purchased the former Hotel Marion, Centrum Mall, and the Sophia Salin Building on the square. Additionally, three local entrepreneurs recently bought a building from the City and have started repurposing an old attorney’s office, after it too, sat vacant for many years.

PHOTOS FROM THE WEEK—GLEN DEVITT

To say I was busy photographing events this week would be an understatement. Here is where this week's travels took me: I shot senior soccer pictures at Mississinewa and saw the Mississinewa vs. Peru soccer match (top, left). I went to Oak Hill to see the volleyball match against Marion (at right, bottom two pictures). I attended the intrasquad football scrimmage at Indiana Wesleyan University (right, top two); it will not be long before the first ever home football game is played at IWU's new football facility. I photographed the Mississinewa home opener vs. Pendleton Heights until the downpour started (left, middle two), so I headed to Angola to follow up with a band (Saliva) I first saw at Hog Daze in Marion last week. I shot this year's theater company headshots at CSA with some of the best kids in Grant County and followed up by attending the Southworth Ford Rodeo at the 4-H Fairgrounds (left, bottom). I finished my week with an annual visit to the Marion stop of the Shift Sector 3 Airstrip Attack. Overall, an awesome week, but very busy!

Seeing signs of a return to life in Marion's center

Over the years—good years and bad—we have spent maybe too much time at this pop stand carrying on about what's wrong with Marion, and there has been a lot wrong: No jobs, no money, no industry, too much debris, too many derelict houses, too much bad government. It goes on and on.

So you'll pardon us today if we sort of strike up the band—a small band, maybe no more than a trio—and do a little cheerleading because, for the first time in maybe a dozen years, the vital signs are looking better. No boomtown stuff, but some quivering and bubbling at the surface. Signs of life.

The most recent evidence came last week with the announcements that two major downtown buildings, including Marion's most venerable old icon, the Marion National Bank Building, have been pulled back from the abyss by new owners. The other being the building built a generation ago as the Indiana Michigan Electric company's regional headquarters. More recently it housed Old National Bank up until three years ago. Both are in the Washington Street corridor.

But pause and let's go back a couple of years ago. We're stopping in a new coffee house in southwest Marion to take a look at the next generation at work. Young people. Purposeful. Talking, conversing, doing whatever they do with their laptops and their smart phones over cups of coffee with complicated names. We have paused here at Abbey Coffee, a brainchild of perhaps Marion's most successful entrepreneur, Darren Campbell, who has quietly built a college bookstore empire, all springing from a derelict K-Mart building.

When they look back decades from now, perhaps they will see this moment as the pivot point: The day when Marion began to haul its bedraggled self off the mat to get back in the game—a radically different game from the one in which it played successfully for half a century, until the rules changed.

Oh, there's still some of the old game being played out; we still have General Motors and several big-time warehouses and locally owned heavy industries, such as the venerable Atlas Foundry...and we shall not recite again the names of the departed. We all know who they were and where they've gone.

College bookstore management, sophisticated computer engineering, installing high-tech TV receivers, growing lettuce under lights in an old warehouse, moving college from the classrooms to downtown storefronts, yoga exercised in the room where they used to sell electric stoves, and maybe something as simple as the coffee houses themselves—there are four of them now, three locally owned. When they look back, these may have been the harbingers of something new where the old gray ladies of industry used to live.

While the town is littered with the wreckage of houses that are no longer homes, it is also dotted with the homes being fashioned from older neighborhoods, refurbished and revived by some of those very same people who do their thinking at the coffee house rather than in the break room, people who came for educations and have chosen to remain to launch families and careers and make their way among the remnants of an economy and culture that has vanished.

As one Marion resident—13 years among us—said a few months ago at a public meeting on the plight of Marion: "I don't want to hear any more about how Marion used to be."

So to return to those buildings downtown—on and off the courthouse square. Indianapolis architect Michael Halstead has already gotten into the game with the purchase and renovation of one of the elegant, century-old buildings on the north side of the square. That is where his Marion office will be. A trio of young men with both ambition and resources has taken on another of those Third Street relics.

The Marion Housing Authority, led by Steve Sapp, is doing things that could transform much more. Complicated and costly. We shall have to wait and see. But two of the big buildings—Marion National and Old National—got new leases on life last week.

Ed Breen's column is sponsored by: First Farmer's Bank & Trust—see their advertisement, below.

Halstead stepped more deeply into Marion with the purchase of the six-story edifice at Fourth and Washington streets, and Bill Reece, a Marion native who has been away for a long time, has returned and staked his claim on the old I&M building. Many remember it as the Old National Bank.

Both men have plans and ideas, but plans and ideas take time and money, and that requires patience and work.

Let's do what we can to help that happen.

Marion and Eastbrook open with gridiron wins

Eastbrook

It might not have been the prettiest game for the Eastbrook Panthers, but they made enough plays to earn the victory, defeating the Norwell Knights by a score of 30-13. The Knights actually led 13-10 in the third quarter, but Eastbrook outscored Norwell 11-3 the rest of the way to begin the season 1-0.

Head Coach Jeff Adamson was honest in the assessment of his team's play, and knows there is still plenty of work to be done. "It was very inconsistent, and often times sloppy," Adamson said. "We put the ball on the ground a lot, and we had far too many penalties. We had an offensive penalty on every drive that we had the entire night, and I believe we had the ball on the ground six times throughout the course of the night. It's not particularly good, but you want to get out of that first week with a win. We were fortunate to have the win, but our list of things to work on is awfully long."

Justin Singer scored twice in the win, including a 74-yard scamper, while Xaine Kirby scored from 18 yards out in the first quarter. Heading into the season, the Panthers had five new starters along the offensive line, and while they are still a work in progress, they continued to make strides on Friday night. "There were some real bright moments, but there were some struggles as well," Adamson said. "We are still not as consistent there as we need to be or want to be. We are definitely seeing some improvement there, [and] I really think the potential is there. It's just going to take a little bit of time for those guys to be comfortable with each other."

With a tough matchup against Delta in week two, Adamson and the Panthers are going to work on improving two areas. "Discipline and execution," Adamson said. "Discipline in eliminating some of the penalties that we had, but also simple execution--being able to finish a block, that kind of thing. We were able to see Delta on film already, and they are pretty good, so we are going to have to work pretty hard this week."

Indians fall to Arabians on special teams play

Lost in the shuffle of high-powered offenses or stalwart defenses, it is easy to forget how important special teams are. Special teams can determine the outcome of a game, whether it be a last-second field goal or an electrifying punt return. Or, as the Mississinewa Indians found out, a lack of execution on special teams can prove costly.

Jarod Miller scored on a blocked punt, the Indians botched a crucial extra point, and the Pendleton Heights Arabians upset Mississinewa, 31-30, at Fisher Field on Friday night.

The Indians got off to a great start, mixing in a variety of running backs to keep the Arabians' defense on their heels during their first drive. Over the course of 17 plays, the Indians went 72 yards, capping it off with an Andruw Cruz one-yard touchdown plunge to give the Indians a 7-0 lead.

Pendleton Heights responded just four plays later, as senior quarterback Christian Conkling kept the ball and scored from nine yards out to knot the game up at seven.

On the Indians' next possession, Cade Campbell had a 30-yard touchdown run called back due to a holding penalty, which, in turn, stalled a promising drive. But, as heavy rain began to fall, Chris Pavey recovered a fumble, giving the ball back to the Indians.

Heisman Skeens, who is the team's starting quarterback, along with being one of their top rushing options, scored on the next play to put Mississinewa back up by seven.

The Arabians would not go down without a fight, however, as Conkling scored his second rushing touchdown of the evening with just under three minutes to go in the first half to even the score.

It is common knowledge that Skeens is a talented running back, but, on the Indians' next possession, he showed that he can also sling a football when the situation warrants it. On 1st-and-10 from their own 20, Skeens threw a beautiful ball to Campbell, who took it 80 yards to the house, giving Mississinewa a seven-point advantage at the half.

The Indians increased their lead to 24-14 after Andre Sallade converted a 25-yard field goal attempt on their first drive of the second half.

After that, Pendleton Heights' running back Camden Earley took matters into his own hands. With the loss of starting inside linebacker John Hall after their first series, the Indians' run defense struggled throughout the evening, leaving a lot of room to run in the middle of the field.

"When you take a couple of pieces out of the puzzle, we were shuffling guys around and putting them in different positions that they have never practiced before," Mississinewa Head Coach Curt Funk said after the game. "The result of that was confusion on defense against a high-potent offense."

Earley, who finished the game with 122 yards rushing, compiled 67 of those yards on the Arabians' second possession of the third quarter, including a 24-yard touchdown scamper to cut the Indians' lead to three.

After pinning the Indians deep in their own territory and forcing a critical three-and-out, Hunter Thompson burst through the gap on Mississinewa's ensuing punt try, getting a hand on the ball and sending it towards the end zone. Miller did the rest, falling on the ball for the score and giving the Arabians their first lead of the evening, 28-24, and swinging the momentum fully in their favor.

The Indians responded with a 12-play, 65-yard drive that was capped off by a Campbell one-yard touchdown run, but failed to convert the PAT when the hold on the extra point attempt could not be secured.

Needing just a field goal to win the game, the Arabians methodically moved their offense on a final drive. A 14-yard run by Conkling and a 13-yard dash by Joseph Rios helped Pendleton Heights advance deep into Mississinewa territory, but a delay of game penalty left the Arabians facing a fourth-and-6 from the Indians' 32-yard line.

But, despite excellent coverage, Conklin found Anakin Allison for nine yards to keep the drive alive.

Five plays later, Arabians' kicker Nick Taylor nailed the game-winning 18-yard field goal.

The Indians attempted a long field goal attempt as time expired, but, once again, fumbled the snap and any chance for a miracle finish was snuffed out.

"Special teams are a big part of the game," Funk said. "We preach that and practice it, and tonight, we fell short on special teams. We did some nice things too, but they just made more plays in that category, and we didn't."

Though disappointed in the outcome, Funk knew going in that Friday night's game would be one of their toughest of the season. "Pendleton--they are loaded this year," Funk said. "They are senior heavy, they've got a tremendous amount of talent, and we knew it was going to be a tough, hard-fought game. Hopefully, we can meet up again in the Sectional."

Now, heading into their game against New Haven next weekend, Funk knows that all the mistakes his team made are easily correctable and plans to use this game as a teaching tool for the rest of the season.

"It's just first game stuff, there is always going to be confusion, but there were things we could fix, and we will get better," Funk said. Along with Earley's superb performance, Conkling ran for 59 yards and two touchdowns, while Allison finished with two catches for 50 yards.

Skeens finished eight-of-11, passing for 143 yards and one touchdown, while also running for 123 yards and a score. Campbell had six receptions for 119 yards and a touchdown, while rushing for 56 yards and a touchdown in the Indians' loss.

son-Grant Head Coach Brady Turner, who recently took over for the now-departed Kyle Booher, was proud of how his team battled even when down by multiple scores.

"Tipton is a very good team that is very well coached and disciplined," Turner said. "After looking at film we have seen that the kids did not give up and continued to play even with score being the way it was. We still have a lot of work to do, but I believe we improved. We found several teachable moments in the game. All things considered, we are very young team, and, as a coaching staff, we have to teach on every play to try and get better."

Heading into their second game of the season against the Eastern Comets, Turner is looking for continued growth on both sides of the ball. "Our focus will be on cutting out the mental mistakes and work on getting more aggressive at the point of attack," Turner said.

Marion

A stout defensive effort, combined with an ever-improving offense, led to a huge win for the Marion Giants in week one, as they blanked the Huntington North Vikings, 47-0.

JK Thomas threw a 27-yard touchdown pass to D'Angelo Jones and scored on a 22-yard punt return to give the Giants a 13-0 lead in the first quarter, but rain, combined with penalties and turnovers, stalled Marion's offense in the second frame.

The Giants' defense, however, bailed them out, and, before long, the Giants' offense got back on track.

Four more offensive touchdowns, including a one-yard run from Khalid Stamps and Jones' second touchdown reception, together with one defensive score, put the game well out of reach for Huntington North.

"I thought we started off pretty good, and then we got kind of flat for a while, but the defense did an amazing job stopping [Huntington,]" Marion Head Coach Craig Chambers said. "It wasn't too bad. There are things we have to do differently on offense, but [it was] not too bad of a night."

County matchup

For the first 62 minutes of their match on Saturday evening at Dick Lootens Stadium, the Marion Giants and the Eastbrook Panthers went toe-to-toe. In a battle of two technically sound teams, it usually comes down to the one that makes fewer mistakes and capitalizes on its opportunities, and with just over 18 minutes to go in the match, the Panthers finally broke through, tallying twice in a relatively short amount of time to earn a 2-0 triumph over their county rival.

"I thought it was pretty even in the first half, and I thought in the second half our midfield got a little more of a rhythm going," Eastbrook Head Coach Adam Hallis said. "They are a good team. It's a great second game, and it was fun to watch."

Stellar goalkeeping dictated the first half, as Eastbrook's Jacob Huber and Marion's Josue Mora executed save after save to keep the game scoreless. Huber, in particular, made some remarkable stops, including many while surrounded by a crowd of people. As the match was winding down, the Panthers began to make a bigger offensive push. They finally found twine with 18:29 remaining in the contest when Collin Burman scored his fourth goal of the season, unassisted.

Burman, who missed significant time last season with a neck injury, has been one of Eastbrook's top offensive players in the early part of the 2018 campaign. "He's playing phenomenal up there," Hallis said of Burman. "It's nice to see him back fully healthy and going at it. He's a great competitor."

Just over two minutes later, Noah Ross gave the Panthers some insurance with a goal of his own, and the defense held on down the stretch to secure the victory.

Eastbrook

In their first game of the 2018 campaign, the Panthers defeated the Wabash Apaches by a score of 7-1 last Tuesday evening. Eastbrook scored four goals in the first half and three in the second. Collin Burman netted a hat trick, while Noah Ross scored twice. Zane and Lucas Shilts each scored once in Eastbrook's victory.

"The midfield moved the ball around well," Hallis said. "We put ourselves in good positions, and we had our chances. We took quite a few shots, and we were able to put some away."

While the Apaches did score on a penalty kick, goalkeeper Jacob Huber was equally as impressive in the season opener. "Huber has really come a long way in his distribution. He had some nice throws out to the guys," Hallis said. "He was great in net."

Marion

In their season opener against Fort Wayne Snider on Wednesday, midfielder Isak Lagervist converted a penalty kick in the first half, and that turned out to be all the offense that was needed, as the Giants defeated the Panthers, 1-0. Though the offense was unable to capitalize on several other quality scoring chances, the defense locked in, and Josue Mora turned away every shot he faced to record his first varsity shutout and secure the Giants' victory.

After dropping a 2-0 decision to the Eastbrook Panthers in their home opener on Saturday evening, the Giants bounced back with a thrilling victory on Monday, erasing a one-goal halftime deficit to defeat the Columbia City Eagles, 4-3.

The Eagles' offense came out humming, scoring two goals on three shots in the opening 40 minutes, but Brendin Dixon scored his first goal as a Giant to cut the deficit to 2-1 heading into halftime.

After assisting on Dixon's tally in the first half, Lagervist converted another penalty to knot the game at two, before setting up Devante Boyd for his first goal of the season to give Marion their first lead of the night. A defensive breakdown led to another Columbus City goal that tied the game back up, but with about 15 minutes left in the contest, Kyle Coryea netted the eventual game-winner. Marion's defense held on the rest of the way to secure the victory.

Mississinewa

Last Tuesday in their season opener, Mississinewa took a step in the right direction. Holden Brown and Noah Black each scored twice, while Collin Yoder added one, as the Indians defeated the Peru Bengal Tigers, 5-0. "We managed to possess the ball and make Peru chase the ball," Mississinewa Head Coach Jared Reel said after the game. "Once we settled on the defensive end, we took control of the game. We were able to tire out their midfield and forwards so they ran out of gas by the second half."

Conner Layman made two saves in the shutout victory, while the Indians outshot the Bengal Tigers 35-7.

County matchups

Last year, the Eastbrook Panthers had two major strengths that contributed to their success. The first was striker Sarah Foulk, who finished with 22 goals in her freshman campaign. The second was a suffocating midfield and back line, which did not allow opposing offenses to get into a rhythm. Both were on display last Tuesday night. Foulk scored the lone goal of the contest, the defense held, and the Eastbrook Panthers began the 2018 season with a 1-0 victory over Grant County rival Oak Hill.

From the start, the Panthers did an excellent job possessing the ball, as well as making crisp passes all over the pitch to put the pressure on early. It did not take long for Eastbrook to capitalize, as Foulk took a pass from midfielder Natalie Lakanen and deposited it in the back of the net in just the fifth minute of the contest.

"We knew coming in that [Oak Hill] has a strong defense, so our goal was to go out or go back, and I feel like for the most part, we did that," Head Coach Jamie Hallis said. "I was proud of our runs and our passes, and I think we possessed really well."

After Foulk's tally, the back end did its job, not allowing Oak Hill to find any sort of rhythm throughout the first 40 minutes. "I think our defense was incredibly solid," Hallis said. "They did a great job. Oak Hill has some really good players, and I think they did a really good job containing them."

In the second half, despite a constant barrage of shots, Oak Hill goalkeeper Andrea Wilk stood tall in net, making five solid saves to keep the game close. Along with that, the Golden Eagles locked down on Foulk throughout the rest of the contest, not allowing her many other scoring chances.

"We've got girls that are working more as a unit," Head Coach Katie Durrwachter said. "They've got more toughness, more fight, and more communication this early in the season than we have had in a long time."

Sarah Foulk has a knack for scoring goals, which was on full display in the Marion-Eastbrook game Saturday evening. "She was fantastic," said Hallis. "I don't know if she could have played any better than she played tonight."

Foulk netted a hat trick, the defense locked down the equally dangerous Taylor Kitts, and the Panthers came away with a 3-0 victory over the Marion Giants at Dick Lootens Stadium.

Throughout a majority of the first half, momentum was on the Giants' side, as their offense was able to find some quality looks at the net. But Eastbrook goalkeeper Gabby Scott was up to the challenge. Kitts had four excellent scoring chances. Scott had four enormous saves to keep Marion's top offensive threat from finding the back of the net.

"She did great tonight,"

A glimpse of what class cross country competition might be

Single A and 2A cross country teams in the state of Indiana got a little taste of what class cross country would look like this past weekend, if the IHSAA had true class sports in Indiana, and not just classes for eight of their 20 sports.

On the Shelbyville cross country course, where the Indianapolis Semi-state is held, an invited group of top 1A and 2A cross country teams competed in the Southwestern Invitational: 25 teams in the girls race, 25 teams in the boys race.

When the smoke cleared, for the second year in a row, Oak Hill not only won, but dominated the competition.

It's not that Coach Paige Brunner has state cross country and track superstars Tahj Johnson and Molly Gamble at his disposal, he has maybe the most depth he has had in 15 years of coaching cross country at Oak Hill, which is saying something since in those years his working on reaching its full potential, the defense already looked to be in mid-season form for the Giants, and Chambers hopes that their stalwart play will continue. "The coaches have been working hard [and] the kids have been working hard," Chambers said. "The good thing is that we have the defense that can carry us in the few opening games [while] giving us a chance to [improve] on our offense."

The Giants will head to Mount Vernon of Fortville to face the Marauders in week two.

After the Golden Eagles stopped the Comets on their ensuing drive, their offense was moving down the field with ease before an unlucky turn of events cost them the game.

"We were driving," Oak Hill Head Coach Bud Ozmun said. "We were picking up three or four yards a clip, had all the momentum, and really felt like we were in a great position to get a go-Ahead score. We just had a bad snap, it ended up putting us in a third-and-long situation, and we weren't able to convert. That was our last opportunity to score."

Despite the disappointing loss, Ozmun believes that the Golden Eagles have a lot to build on heading into their week two matchup with the Southwood Knights.

"I thought we played a lot better in the second half," Ozmun said. "The defense played really well for three quarters, and guys handled the offensive adjustment well. We had our opportunity, we just couldn't capitalize. We have to take what we did for three quarters of the game and carry that over into next week."

Holz led the Golden Eagles with 61 yards on the ground, while Bradley Rosman finished with 11 tackles to lead the defense.

stat from Saturday's meet, was that, of the 29 student athletes who ran for Oak Hill, only two were seniors. Reports have it that the seventh grade and eighth grade cross country classes are loaded, too.

So, just like the other 12 sports in Indiana that still run a true state championship and have nothing to do with class, the Eagles will contend later this fall in the Indianapolis High School Athletic Association state meet. Notice I said "Indianapolis" High School Athletic Association since top teams in the Indy area are now being shipped all over Indiana, to help make the state meet more like an all-Indianapolis-area affair.

At least for one morning it was fun to see what class competition would look like for the Oak Hill cross country team, a program that has dominated 1A and 2A running in Indiana ever since the school first opened in the early 1960s.

Hallis said of Scott. “Our defense did a wonderful job of staying close to Taylor, but she did get off several shots off in the first half. Gabby was ready every time.”

While Kitts was denied, Foulk would not be. With just under 12 minutes to go in the first half, Foulk, after a spectacular individual effort in front of the net, found twine to break the scoreless tie and give the Panthers a 1-0 lead heading into halftime.

Just five minutes into the second half, Foulk scored again, and ten minutes after that, the sophomore potted goal number three off of a breakaway to give the Panthers a comfortable advantage.

Marion Head Coach Jacob Boggs did not mince words when discussing his team’s performance against the Panthers. “It’s the effort that didn’t happen tonight,” Boggs said. “They looked worse than the first day I saw them. We regressed way back. It was a lack of mental focus and a lack of wanting to play. You have to bring your lunch pail every single day.”

Marion

In the Marion Giants’ home opener against South Adams last Tuesday evening, Taylor Kitts once again lit up the scoreboard. Fresh off of her seven-goal performance in the annual Grant County Jamboree, Kitts scored four goals as the Giants routed the Starfires, 6-1.

“Obviously, she is an amazing player, but she [also] made several runs to help cover the center back spot just to make sure we did not give up any more goals. That’s the mentality, and that’s the work rate that I need out of my best players,” Boggs said. “That’s the kind of stuff that spreads like wildfire.”

In net, Jazmyn Turner continues to make strides, making three saves and allowing just the one goal. “She’s getting better,” Boggs said. “She did a good job of going up and getting balls in the air. The goal she got beat on—I know if she had it again, she wouldn’t get beat.” Ellie Vermilion finished with the other two goals in the contest, while Claire Hendricks, Katie Erickson, and Morgan Hartman each recorded assists in Marion’s victory.

Mississinewa

Beth Lucas scored her first two goals of the season in Mississinewa’s season opener against Delta on Saturday morning, but a six-goal day from Addie Chester proved to be the difference in the Eagles’ 6-2 triumph over the Indians.

Chester scored four of her six goals in the first half, as the Eagles took a 4-0 lead into halftime. She added two more insurance goals in the final 40 minutes to secure the victory.

“We came out kind of slow in the first half, and we let them pull ahead, but in the second half, we responded really well,” Mississinewa Head Coach Andrea Wilson said. “We came out, worked harder, and moved the ball around better. In the second half, we had several opportunities.”

With Alayna Webb still sidelined with a concussion, Lucas shined from start to finish, creating multiple scoring chances for both herself and her teammates.

“Beth worked really, really hard,” Wilson said. “She created a lot of opportunities up top. I was playing her in the middle in the first half trying to build a stronger core in the center of our field, but I had to move her back up top because she creates so much up there.”

Despite the loss, Saturday’s game provided a plethora of teachable moments for Wilson and her young team heading into the second week of the season. “Come Monday, we have a lot of things to work on, and it kind of gives us a direction to move, which is nice.”

Oak Hill

Following their shutout loss to the Eastbrook Panthers in their home opener last Tuesday, the Oak Hill Golden Eagles rebounded nicely on Wednesday, coming away with a 3-1 triumph over the Kokomo Wildkats for their first win of the 2018 campaign.

Carlee Biddle, Oak Hill’s leading goal scorer from a year ago, scored her first two goals of the season, while Sarah Tucci also found the back of the net. Marissa Wilk and Tegan Phillips each recorded assists.

Andrea Wilk, who had five saves against Eastbrook, was nearly flawless against the Wildkats, making 11 saves on 12 shots in the victory.

ssinewa a 3-2 win over the Wabash Apaches.

Wabash drew first blood, scoring in the 12th minute to take an early 1-0 lead. “We started off the game very sluggish and could not maintain possession of the ball like we did Tuesday night,” Reel said. “Wabash had a lot of possession in the first quarter of the game.” The Indians recorded the equalizer just 13 minutes later, as Brown found the back of the net to tie the game at one goal apiece.

Brown scored again the second half, giving him four goals in Mississinewa’s first two games. Wabash tied it up again a short time later, but Black’s third goal of the season gave the Indians their second victory in as many contests.

Against Tri-Central on Saturday morning, the Indians scored 25 seconds into the game, and proceeded to find the back of the net 16 more times in a 17-1 rout of the Trojans. Yoder finished with eight goals, Brown potted five, while Black, Noah Drake, Josh Terrell, Jeffery Walton, and Cameron Sizemore each scored once in the Indians’ victory. In just one week, the Indians have more wins under Reel (three) than they had all of last season (two).

Oak Hill gave up the early goal again on Thursday evening, but this time, they found the equalizer. Striker Isaiah Henry scored the tying goal in the 72nd minute, and the Golden Eagles came away with a 1-1 tie against a perennially stalwart Huntington North Vikings squad. Henry’s goal was unassisted, while Sam Boyer finished with six saves in the draw.

For the Oak Hill Golden Eagles on Saturday afternoon, an own goal in the 12th minute, combined with a last minute tally from the opposition, robbed Oak Hill of its first victory of the season, as they played to a 2-2 draw

Golden Eagles, they were unable to find one in their season opener last Tuesday evening. Tipton scored in the first two minutes of the contest, and while Oak Hill improved as the game progressed, the Blue Devils held on the rest of the way for the 1-0 victory.

“We started out in first gear and they started in third gear—they just had more energy than we did,” Oak Hill Head Coach Joel Garverick said afterwards. “After that, we grew into the game, and we played pretty well, we were [just] unlucky. We possessed the ball well and had a lot of chances, so the performance wasn’t bad, but we have to be able to get wins from that position.”

Adam Cheek scored the only goal of the contest off an assist from David Tragger. Austin Cochrane had six saves for the Blue Devils in their victory.

For the Oak Hill Golden Eagles on Saturday afternoon, an own goal in the 12th minute, combined with a last minute tally from the opposition, robbed Oak Hill of its first victory of the season, as they played to a 2-2 draw with the Argos Dragons.

At the 28:02 mark, Chino Roque’s shot rang off the post, but the rebound deflected off an Oak Hill defender’s leg and into the back of the net, giving the Dragons a 1-0 lead. The Golden Eagles roared back just five minutes later, as a beautiful give-and-go between Isaiah Henry and Luke VanBibber resulted in Henry’s second goal of the season and knotted the game up at one.

In the 29th minute, the Golden Eagles struck again. Midfielder Jaden Phillips placed the ball perfectly in front of a streaking Gavin Holz, who potted his first goal of the season to give the Golden Eagles a 2-1 lead.

During the second half, Argos continued to find quality scoring opportunities, but Oak Hill goalkeeper Sam Boyer was a brick wall in net, making save after save. In the final minute of play, with a mass of bodies bouncing around in front of Boyer, the ball found its way to the foot of Owen Nifong, who tied the game at two with just 48 seconds left. Oak Hill had one more excellent scoring chance in the final 10 seconds, but they failed to put it home as time expired.

“We got unlucky on that own goal in the first half,” Garverick said. “Then they had the scramble in front of the goal that was a little bit unlucky, and then we had a chance at the end that was a little bit unlucky. Sometimes the ball just doesn’t bounce your way, and today was just one of those days.”

Eastbrook

Kelly Rupert's second season as Eastbrook's head coach got off to a strong start last Tuesday, as the Panthers swept the Southern Wells Raiders 25-18, 25-10, 25-16. Despite displaying some uneasiness early, the Panthers were able to win the first set, which gave them confidence for the rest of the match. They settled down nicely, providing incredible effort all evening long.

"We started off with a few pre-game jitters," Rupert said afterwards. "Then in the second and third sets, we just found our stride."

On Thursday, the Panthers got off to a roaring start, but a lackluster finish cost them in a three-set loss to the Adams Central Jets. The Jets won the first set 28-26, the second set, 25-20, and the final set 25-13. "The first set was awesome," Rupert said. "We started out a little slow, but then we picked it up almost right away. We had tremendous fight from about 20 points on. We stuck with them for a long time. We need to save ourselves a little bit so can we fight when the games get to five sets."

Audrey Altum had six kills to lead the Panthers, while Josalyn Martinez finished with five. Helaina Walters recorded three terminations in Eastbrook's loss.

On Saturday, the Panthers went 2-2 in the North Miami Invitational, defeating Peru and Lakeland Christian while losing to Northfield and Rochester. Their first match of the day was against the Bengal Tigers, where they emerged with a 25-15, 27-25 triumph.

Against the Northfield Norseman in the second match, the Panthers faded down the stretch after a strong start, according to Rupert, dropping a 13-25, 12-25 decision to the Norsemen.

Eastbrook then lost 23-25, 25-23, 15-13 to the Zebras, but finished the tournament on a positive note with a 25-12, 25-21 victory over the Lakers.

Madison-Grant

Last Tuesday evening in their season opener the Argylls were defeated 3-0 by the Jay County Patriots. Multiple mistakes, particularly in the first and third sets, set the tone for the match. "We just had too many serve reception errors," Head Coach Robert Holloway said. "We just had some kids not play particularly well, and our blocking was not very good, which caused some issues."

One bright spot was Sadie Wilson, who impressed Holloway with her play throughout the evening. Mia Stewart and McKenna Lugar, who are both expected to take on bigger roles this season, also competed at a high level, according to Holloway.

On Thursday, Madison-Grant was competitive throughout their match with Pendleton Heights, but the Arabians pulled away in the last two sets to defeat the Argylls 25-23, 26-28, 25-14, 25-13. Pendleton's Gracie King was a force to be reckoned with, finishing with 19 kills, while Avery Ross recorded 12 terminations for the Arabians.

Mia Stewart finished with nine kills, while Brooke Butcher recorded 28 assists in just her second match as the Argylls' primary setter.

On Saturday, the Argylls took home second place honors in the Argyll Invitational, falling to the Adams Central Jets in the championship match.

Marion

Despite battling from start to finish last Tuesday, the Marion Giants dropped an 8-25, 10-25, 12-25 decision to the Northfield Norsemen in their home opener. Cayley Dodson finished with two kills for the Giants, while Miranda Riggs had two assists. Aylivia Mellon led the defensive effort with 14 digs, while Zoe Tucker came away with 10.

Coming off their loss to the Oak Hill Golden Eagles on Thursday, the Marion Giants continued to hone their skills in the Jay County Invitational on Saturday. While they lost all three of their matches to Anderson, Northeastern, and Jay County, respectively, Hinshaw is seeing growth in his young squad.

"We are starting to see the progress of what we have been working on," Hinshaw said. "Obviously, we hope it keeps going in that direction."

The Giants dropped their first match to Anderson 25-23, 22-25, 15-17. Riggs finished with five kills, Persinger had 12 assists, and Mellon recorded 15 digs. Against Northeastern, who defeated Marion 25-21, 25-22, Riggs again led the charge with four terminations, Persinger dished out six assists, and Mellon had 10 digs.

In their final contest, against Jay County, which they lost 11-25, 11-25, Riggs recorded two kills and Persinger finished with six assists.

Mississinewa

The Mississinewa Indians, armed with a new coach and several highly touted newcomers, are looking for a big year in 2018, but in their first match of the season on Thursday, self-inflicted wounds cost the Indians in a four-set loss to the Western Panthers.

"I feel like we kind of beat ourselves," Head Coach Jodi Bolser said. "Though it's a loss, I am walking away hopeful." Halle Planck was dominant at the net, according to Bolser, while her daughters Cailyn and Caily also performed well in their Mississinewa debuts.

On Saturday, Mississinewa went 2-2 in the Elwood Invitational, dropping two three-set matches to Tipton and Clinton Central, respectively, while defeating both Southern Wells and Lewis Cass. Injuries forced the Indians to make some lineup changes, as Kirsten Lockwood sat out with a shoulder injury. Emily Taylor, who usually plays libero for the Indians, played all over the floor and performed well, according to Bolser.

"I feel like our setters continue to grow," Bolser said. "They are making progress and [connecting] with our hitters in ways we hope to see, so that's coming along. We are going to keep building."

The Indians carried over their strong play from the second half of the Elwood Invitational to their match on Monday, sweeping the Bluffton Tigers in three sets. After winning a close first set, 25-21, and running away with the second set, 25-13, the Indians came from behind to win the final set, 25-23, and secure their third victory of the season.

Cailyn Bolser led the Indians with 13 kills, while Caily Bolser finished with seven terminations.

Oak Hill

The Oak Hill Golden Eagles showed their immense potential in their season opener last Tuesday, but miscues and mistakes cost them in a four-set loss to the Maconaquah Braves. The Golden Eagles won the second set, 25-14, but were defeated 20-25 in the first set, 22-25 in the third set, and 22-25 again in the fourth and final set.

"I thought they did a good job of ball placement," Oak Hill Head Coach Kristi Carmichael said. "Our hitters put the ball in the places where [defenders] were not."

Taylor Westgate led the Golden Eagles with 11 kills and six blocks, while Ashlyn Transier finished with 9 kills and three blocks. Lexi Carmichael and Ella Ridgeway combined for 27 assists, while Coleena Selleck finished with five aces and 13 digs.

After a big victory over the Marion Giants on Thursday, the Golden Eagles finished 2-2 in the North Miami Invitational on Saturday, defeating Rochester, 2-1, and Winamac, 2-0, before dropping two three-set matches to Northwestern and Northfield, respectively.

Transier finished with nine kills against the Zebras, while Carmichael and Ridgeway each recorded nine assists. Westgate had eight terminations against Winamac, while Khloe finished with five aces.
