Henderson will run for mayor as Republican

by Sean Douglas

In front of a small crowd at Mc-Carthy Hall last Tuesday evening, Republican Steve Henderson announced his intentions to run for mayor of Marion in the upcoming election, which will take place in November 2019.

Henderson will look to unseat incumbent Democrat Jess Alumbaugh, who has held the position since 2015.

A devout Christian who comes from a church background, Henderson first felt the itch to run for mayor after spending time with Marion's inner city children. Each Sunday, he would drive a bus to pick the kids up and bring them to Liberty Baptist Church in Sweetser. He got to know many of them through that ministry, and after seeing how they lived, Henderson felt that it was time for a more positive change in the city.

"I am running on faith that God will back the changes we need for Marion, whether it's through me or whether it's through somebody else," Henderson said.

Roger Bainbridge, Grant County auditor and Henderson's campaign treasurer, has worked with Henderson over the past three years. The two men have talked frequently about issues in the city of Marion and how they can fix it. As he has come to know Henderson on a deeper level, Bainbridge is confident that he is the right man for the job.

"It's an honor to be a part of this campaign," Bainbridge said. "As somebody who has felt the call of

Lindsay speaks at Lions' 87th annual Old Folks Day

When listening to Blake Lindsay speak at the 87th annual Old Folks Day at the AMVETS in Marion last Thursday, it was difficult to not be moved by his message.

The younger brother of Marion Community Schools Superintendent Brad Lindsay, Blake Lindsay has been blind for most of his life. He was born with retinoblastoma, which is a dangerous cancer that forms from the immature cells of the retina, and his eyes had to be removed.

For some, blindness can be crippling and tough to deal with, but not for Blake Lindsay.

Throughout his life, he has lived it to the fullest. He has ridden a motorcycle, gotten married, graduated from college, and settled into a career as a motivational speaker and the communications director for the Dallas Lighthouse for the Blind.

His main goal is to help people from all over the country find their purpose through life's challenges.

"I've gotten the opportunity to really realize over the past several years that being blind has been a gift to me," Lindsay said during his address. "God has given me a gift to inspire people to give life their very best and to eliminate the excuses."

As a child, he played piano at the Westfield Friends Church, and patrons were amazed at how well he played despite being blind. At that moment, he made the decision not to let his affliction become a crutch.

"I realized at that time that being blind was not a bad deal at all," Lindsay said. "It's not as bad as people think. In fact, there are a lot of things that we can do differently and uniquely that really inspire people."

He told another story about a trip to Quaker Haven in 1973, where, at nine years old, he befriended a mother and her young daughter. The mother could not believe that, even though Lindsay was completely blind, he lived life just like

Taking a look at the life of a man named Saul

Tt is always challenging and refreshing to study the Scripture for the preparation of a sermon. I would have to categorize myself as a nontraditionalist in method and style. I have taken the required courses in homiletics (the preparation of sermons). but the style, technique, or mannerisms of other preachers has never worked for me. I like to study different characters in the Bible because we can learn much from another's life.

One of the greatest conversions ever recorded in the New Testament was that of Saul of Tarsus. Scripture tells us that Saul must have come from a family that had considerable means. He was one of the few that had the tion. He went to the School of Tarsus where he studied philosophy and poetry of the Greeks. He had also studied divinity and Jewish law at the University of Jerusalem. His tutor was Gamaliel, an eminent Pharisee. His education would be considered second to none, it was Saul was not an idle man. He was on a mission to destroy Christianity. He could best be described as "one bad dude." Scripture tells us that he was in a rage against Christianity. What, you might be wondering, would bring him to this point? Christ's teachings of hope, joy, love, and blessing were foreign to the law that Saul had studied.

We learn that he went to orders to go to Damascus and round up the disciples of Christ and bring them back to Jerusalem where they could be punished. There is no doubt the Christians that had fled to Damascus knew that Saul was on his way. However, there is an important principle to be considered at this point. Our Lord is fully aware of every issue that comes our way. In the Gospels, Jesus shared that any attack on His people may as well be an attack on Jesus himself. He knew all about Saul and his people.

As Saul neared Damascus, a great light shined upon him and his followers. Saul fell to the ground. It was at that time that Jesus personally spoke to Saul and said, "Why are you persecuting

"Growing up here, I have watched our city fall apart brick by brick, and it breaks my heart," Henderson said. "The question that needs to be asked is: are we going to keep roaming the desert? Or do we seek to find the promised land that we have here? There are some things that are going to be hard to carry out, but my team and I are ready for the challenge."

With the increasing amount of violence in the city over the last few months, Henderson plans a major overhaul, looking to allocate more resources to keeping the residents of Marion safe and secure.

"As a mayor, I will take this very seriously, because this is the mayor's number one job," Henderson said.

Despite having a plethora of job openings, Marion has one of the highest unemployment rates in the state of Indiana, according to Henderson. To curb this, he plans to a better job of letting the people of Grant County and surrounding areas know that there is work available in the

More recently, Lindsay went sky diving, something he had never done before, to challenge himself. He jumped from 13,500 feet, and loved every second of it.

These three stories just scratched the surface, but all demonstrated a common theme—a man living his best life despite what many might view as a difficult situation.

"Entering the unknown zone was one of the best moments of my life," Lindsay said. "When we are diving into a challenge that we have never met before, we are going to enter the unknown zone. We don't know what to expect, but we know that there is victory on the other side."

When it comes to being blind, there are always good days and bad days, but throughout his life, Lindsay has thrived due to his positive out-

"If you're giving it your all, you will be amazed at the doors that will open," Lindsay said. "It's not about me, it's about what I can do for others. There are going to be times that it's not fun to be blind, obviously, but mostly, you get people to tell you what things look like and you get to see things through their eyes and their point of view. It's all good."

At the conclusion of his speech, Lindsay left everyone with a challenge of his own—be there for one another and love your life despite the circumstances.

"Today is the first day of the rest of our lives, Lindsay said. "So let's get out there and inspire each other to be our very best, enjoy this part of vour life, and turn your success into significance.

when and how." A little different slant, isn't it? Not a mention there of greed or crime or slime or swamp or any of those things we now associate with politics, going back—for my generation at least—to the days of Watergate and Vietnam. Lee Hamilton, that most gracious and elegant of Hoosier politicians, has written an article on all this, including a brief little users guide on getting into the game.

Hamilton, who represented Indiana in the Congress for 34 years and is now 87 years old and pretty darn robust and living in Bloomington, has done a lot. Among other things, he was co-chair of the committee that reported to America what went wrong on 9/11.

He writes regularly on what's right and wrong with his country, and last week he told his readers it's time to get off the bench and into the game.

"A lot of people these, days," he writes, "intuitively grasp that our system needs our involvement if we're to safeguard it. So, pecially if politics has to share space in our lives with family and jobs?

"The first step is easy: Look around your community and ask yourself what needs fixing or what can be done better," he advises.

"I don't care where you live, but 10 minutes thought and you'll come up with a healthy list of issues to tackle. This is how a lot of people get started; they see an issue they want to do something about. So, they enter the fray, and often come to recognize that they have more political power than they thought.

"Of course, your chances of effecting change grow as you learn. You have to inform yourself about the issue: Listen carefully as you talk to your neighbors and friends, and pay attention to what politicians, commentators and those involved with the issue have to say. Participate, if you will, in the dialogue of democracy.

"It's perfectly fine to personalize the issue as you seek to persuade others, but to be effective you've got to know what others think, too," the Hoosier politician

Grant County volleyball teams preparing for season

Last season, Kelly Arnold (now Kelly Rupert) was fresh out of college and looking to lay the foundation of a successful program at Eastbrook High School. While the team finished with a 7-18 record last year, the Panthers showed glimpses of real potential throughout the season and Rupert hopes they will take the next step in 2018. Heading into year two of her coaching tenure, Rupert is feeling much more at ease than she did a year ago. With two excellent assistants in Bailey Havens and Leah Selk, she believes that practices, workouts, and games will run much smooth-

"I feel a lot more confident," Rupert said. "We have a good coaching staff this year, so that will be really great to have the three of us as a team and as a unit. Last year we just had two, so it was a little difficult with running practices, tournaments, stats, and all of that stuff. So having three of us will take a lot of pressure off of one individual. Along with that, Rupert has a better knowledge of her players, which has also helped her confidence heading into 2018. "Last year at this point, we were still getting to know each other," Rupert said. "Now, it feels so much better going into the year knowing my seniors really well." One of the biggest issues for the Panthers was team chemistry. In a game like volleyball, playing as one unit, rather than as individual players, is crucial to a team's success. Throughout the offseason, along with working on playing with more control and improving their mental toughness, Rupert and her staff have concentrated quite a bit on improving that harmony, and it has yielded positive results.

"Last year was a growing year and a molding year where we worked to get to know each other," Rupert said. "One of the things last year that hindered us was our team chemistry, not really having everyone together. This year, I wanted to focus primarily on team chemistry and team bonding.

While some players from last year did not return to the team this season, many talenttrying to figure out who fits ed players did, including Helaina Walters, Audrey Altum, Martinez. Furthermore. Marissa Brown and Ariel Duke, who both played JV last year. will be looking to add their own unique playing style to the Panthers in 2018.

> "All six of them can be big in their own way," Rupert said. "Obviously, Helaina and Audrey are awesome hitters, and can be dominant. Helaina is a great all-around player, and I think the girls really look up to her for a lot of things. She's volleyball smart, and I think she will be really great. With Schelly, Josalyn, Marissa, and Ariel, it's been fun to see them all take a leadership role this summer. I hope they continue to do that throughout

With the season just around the corner, Rupert hopes that her team will play at the highest level against the other teams from Grant County.

"A tangible goal would be to get more than seven wins," Rupert concluded. "I see us getting far more than that this year. Also, going against the Grant County schools this year, I really want to see us perform our best and not get into the head game that those teams can put us in."

Madison-Grant Coming off of a 26-win campaign in 2017, the Madison-Grant Argylls will have a different look in 2018. The Argylls only lost three seniors, but all three were key contributors to the team's success over the past few years. Sloane Stewart had over 600 kills last season while still recovering from her ACL injury from two graduate, Hinshaw had previously served as an assistant coach at both Indiana Wesleyan University and Taylor University, as well as directed volleyball clubs in Indiana and Missouri. Now, he looks to bring his volleyball expertise to a team that, at times last year, showed great potential.

"The biggest things that I hope to bring are experience and knowledge to help challenge them to be the best that they can be," Hinshaw said. "I just want them to do the best that they can do so they can excel and be proud of who Heading into the 2018 season, Holloway is not looking for a certain number of wins or a sectional title or a berth in the state finals. Rather, he wants his team to love the game and perform to the best of their ability throughout the course of the campaign.

"Generally, I have only two goals," Holloway concluded. "I don't know how long a work in progress we are going to be, but they need to play the best that they can and they need to enjoy playing volley-

So, with a team full of youth and inexperience. Hinshaw has taken it back to square one. "Our biggest focus has been the basics," Hinshaw said. "We've been working on refining the basic skills of volleyball so that we can be more efficient and successful. We are returning youth. We do not have a starter [from last year] returning for varsity, and we have two or three that saw very little playing time that were moved from JV. We are going to be really young.' Several players are starting to make significant strides. Sophomore Lucia Persinger has established herself as the team's primary setter heading into this coming season, while junior outside hitter Kaliyah Jones has shown a lot of promise throughout the summer. "Our biggest goal is for the girls to give their best and to get better each day." Hinshaw said. "We are trying to make Marion volleyball something that people want to come watch and want to talk about. Basically, we want to make the program respectable at all levels and one that the community can be proud of."

They are all more than capable of doing that."

have a familiar face patrolling the bench this coming year. Kristi Carmichael, after coaching vollevball in various capacities at the school over the past 10 years, was promoted to varsity this offseason. She has coached all of the players on the roster at one time or another, and has a positive relationship with each

With all of the turmoil that the Golden Eagles have endured over the past few seasons, Carmichael is working to help her players transition into a new, more positive chapter. "We are just moving on and doing our best to not let the past define us," Carmichael said. "We know we have the talent, so it's just a matter of putting it all together, being mentally prepared, and being

Along with improving their mental outlook, Carmichael and the team have worked throughout the offseason on several different skill areas. "A lot of volleyball is just being smart and playing smart, so as any team would, we are working on improving the fundamentals," Carmichael continued. "We've been pressing a lot on serve-receive. We can't do a whole lot with our offense if we don't have a good pass. We've also been working with our hitters to aim for the spots on the court where the defense

Of all the volleyball teams in Grant County, the Golden Eagles have one of the tallest rosters. Ashlyn Transier and Taylor Westgate, both middle hitters, are 6-0 and 6-1, respectively. Khloe Price is also listed at 6-1. Along with that, the Golden Eagles have a plethora of talent moving up from the JV ranks, including juniors Abby Shaw, Alyssa CarmiThe Sports Herald

brook community would think that the Panthers' girls soccer team was seniorheavy considering how well they played throughout the course of the 2017 season. That could not be further from the truth

In fact, only two seniors started for the Panthers last fall, with the rest of the lineup comprised of freshmen, sophomore, and juniors. Despite their youth, the Panthers played well beyond their years.

Under the direction of Rebecca Shrontz, Eastbrook finished with a 14-3-2 record and a Class 1A sectional title before falling to Fort Wayne Blackhawk Christian in the regional round. Shrontz stepped down after the season was over, handing the reigns over to assistant coach Jamie Hallis, whose husband Adam coaches the boys

Unlike several teams in the county, who lost quite a bit of senior leadership to graduation, the Panthers will retain much of the core roster in 2018, including their top three goal scorers.

Sarah Foulk, a freshman in 2017, finished with 22 goals in 14 games. Natalie Danals found the back of the net 20 times, while Natalie Lakanen potted 12 goals in 11 contests.

On top of that, the Panthers return a formidable defensive group, including Shauna Singer, Rachel Manning, and Zoe Ratliff, all of whom are underclassmen. Grace Brown, a transfer from Huntington North, has gotten looks on defense over the summer, while Bria Patel has also made strides on the back end.

In goal, after splitting time with Sydney Pattison last year, Gabby Scott, now a sophomore, will be the Panthers No. 1. Scott appeared in 17 games, allowing just 11 goals.

This is a team that won 14 games a year ago, and, according to Hallis, they've

"There a few of them that played some club over the summer. They came to open field practices and already seemed to be different players," Hallis said. "They are just seeing the field better, hitting their passes, making the runs, and connecting more with each other. They have shown huge growth." Much of Eastbrook's suc-

to continue in 2018 as they was having a strong offseason before Laypoole's departure, will be a major contributor on offense. Claire Hendricks, who scored three goals last season, looks to take on a big-

Ellie Vermilion, who played on the back end last season, will be moving up to midfield. Vermilion scored four goals last season, which was the most among Marion defenders, and Boggs believes that she will be better suited in the middle of the field with Taylor Kitts and returning defender Katie Erickson

Gabi Reed, who scored four goals herself as a junior last year, will look to use her speed to her advantage once again in 2018.

It's been a bit of a whirlwind for Boggs in these last few weeks, but even though he hasn't been around the team very long, he sees the potential that the Giants possess. In fact, he set a Now, just a few days before pretty lofty goal for Marion in 2018, and he strongly believes that if they play for one another, all while trusting the process, they can achieve it.

"I told these girls that I don't just win a sectional or win the regional, I want to go to state," Boggs said. "That's my goal. I've been enough, and I told the girls that we have a lot of talent on this team. I have taken teams that no one gave a shot, and next you know we are rocking it out because they bought in and everyhis playing and coaching one is working hard for each other. That's the key."

Mississinewa

After a grueling start in the 2017 season, the Mississinewa Indians girls' soccer team were much improved during the second half of their schedule. With the team playing more as one unit rather than individual entities, the Indians compiled a 5-3-1 record in their last nine games, giving Head Coach Andrea Wilson a glimpse of what could potentially be a strong team where he led the club soc- this coming season.

As has been the case Wilson has several girls on the team that do not have a plethora of soccer experience, but what they lack in experience they make up for with work ethic and a desire to improve each day. "Each year at Mississ-inewa, I always have a lot of girls that are athletic but have never played soccer, so I always have this new batch of players that are that just learning," Wilson said. "But, they are hungry and eager to learn. I have a lot of girls coming in this year that, again, have not played much soccer, but Despite not playing in the first few games last season, Beth Lucas, a transfer to Mississinewa, was second on the team with seven goals. With a full offseason with the team under her belt, she looks to be a top scoring threat with the Indians this coming season.

"Beth didn't miss a beat last season," Wilson said. Everybody just took to her and she gelled with everybody. I look for her to have a big role this season. She's small, but she has an aggressive passion that I love. You just can't teach that."

On the back end, Laekyn Emmons, who is entering just her third year of competitive soccer, has also made tremendous strides over the course of the sum-

"She has just surpassed what I ever expected from her," Wilson said. "With [Holli] Greer leaving, I needed somebody to step up in that defender role, and I'm real confident that Laekyn is going to do that."

Kristen Terrell, who played in 17 of the team's 18 games last season, will be the starting goalkeeper for the Indians.

Looking at the India much improved team in play she saw in the second half of last season will continue as this coming season progresses.

"My hope is that we start out strong and that we just continue to get stronger as the season goes on," Wilson concluded. "Those games that we were on the cusp of winning last year are the ones I want to win this year. We are going to keep working hard on our passing and our communication. I foresee us doing better than last year."

Golden Eagles return a strong trio in defenders Lizzie Wood and Elizabeth McDivitt and goalkeeper Andrea Wilk. Wilk was strong in net for most of the season, recording eight shutouts, while Wood and McDivitt made it tough on opposing offenses to get anything going. It's time to either have classes or not

None of us are fans of class sports, but it is what it is. Only problem is that, when the IHSAA in its haste to make all the small schools happy 20 years ago, decided to make classes, they forgot that going to class sports means more then just basketball.

So here we are, two decades later, and we still have

Of the 20 sports sanctioned by the IHSAA, only eight have class champions. Girls gymnastics, boys wrestling, boys and girls track, boys and girls tennis, boys and girls swimming, boys and girls golf, and boys and girls cross country are still single-class.

So of the 20 sports in Indiana, eight are contested in classes, and the other 12 have never changed. Seems like someone forgot to make a motion or something.

So, for instance, while Oak Hill is hoisting a state Class 2A championship trophy in boys basketball, their loaded boys and girls track teams must still compete with schools 10 times their size.

Since the Indy schools are so used to dominating all sports, they are trying to move around some sectionals and regionals so that all the teams that advance end up coming from the Indianapolis area.

What am I referring to? Seven years ago the IHSAA had a motion on the table to allow certain cross country powerhouses from the Indy area to move out to other semi-states, so they would have a better chance of competing for a state title. If only six Indy-area teams could get out of the Indy semistate, some really good teams would be left by the wayside.

Before the matter could even come to a vote, Assistant Commissioner Robert Faulkens said this is a non discussable item. Now, seven years later, when it came back up, Faulkens wasn't there to save the day. So Fishers and Hamilton Southeastern, two powerhouse cross country schools, are moving up to the

Then I watched the girls three-way golf match between Marion, Mississinewa and Madison-Grant out at Meshingomesia (at right). I stopped by the Gas City Speedway and shot some overhead footage of the racing action (second from top, on the right). I stopped by the jobsite of Marion's Texas Roadhouse (third from top, on the right). The construction is moving along nicely and work continues on the interior fit-out. We will have steaks available in no time. I was downtown Marion on Saturday night and shot a few unusual images on the Square (immediately above). New construction is coming along nicely on several rehab projects. This week I am also shooting the homesites for the 2018 Saint Paul Tour of Homes coming up in the middle of September.
