Marion music teacher honored

by Sean Douglas

One of Grant County's teachers was honored recently, as McCulloch Junior High School choir director Christina Huff was named the 2019 Middle School Educator of the Year by the Indiana Music Education Association (IMEA). Huff received the award at the IMEA's Professional Development Conference in Ft. Wayne.

The IMEA gives the award to one educator at four levels—elementary, middle school, high school, and college. According to the IMEA, "the award signifies these educators have exemplified outstanding achievement in the field of music education."

A 2003 graduate of Indiana Wesleyan University, Huff began her career at her alma mater, teaching for six years at IWU. She then moved on to McCulloch, where she has helped the choir program grow during her tenure. This year, Huff has 135 students in her program, and has had multiple students selected for the Honor Choir, as well as the annual Circle the State with Song festival, over the last five years.

"It was kind of surreal," Huff said about learning she was being honored. "When you're teaching, you don't typically teach to get awards. So, it was a huge surprise, and a really great confirmation of what I am trying to do in my classroom every day."

McCulloch's music program, as a whole, has been one of the best in the state, earning the Indiana State School Music Association's Junior High/Middle School/Elementary Total Department All Music Award four years in a row. McCulloch is the only school in Indiana to accomplish that feat.

While having the administration at her back has been a major factor in the choir program's success, Huff noted that it would not be

Converse man keeps sound of 'Joy'

Fifty years ago, Mike Burton, now a Grant County Commissioner, was beginning his career in radio as a disc jockey at WBAT in Marion. Dave Freelan was 16 years into what would be a 38-year teaching career—most of those years teaching history and economics at Eastern High School in Greentown.

Burton and Freelan attended the same Sunday school class at South Marion Friends Church.

"One Sunday, our class was discussing why there wasn't more sacred music on local radio stations, so Mike and I decided to do something about that," Freelan said. "Mike talked to his boss, Bill Fowler, about the possibility of WBAT airing a weekly show featuring sacred music."

Fowler granted the request, but with one stipulation: Burton and Freelan would have to find sponsors for the show. They quickly found four sponsors, and "Songs for Sunday Evening" began airing in 1968 with Burton and Freelan as co-hosts.

Beefing up school safety

Indiana schools have many tools available to keep students and educators safe. However, after two school shooting incidents in under a year, it is clear that more must be done in order to protect Hoosier students, teachers and staff. This session, state lawmakers are taking steps to better ensure the safety and well-being of those in our schools.

Indiana is a national leader in school safety and security, according to the Security Industry Association. To date, the state has invested over $100 million into increasing security for students and teachers. With 1.1 million K-12 students in Indiana, every dollar matters.

A (not self-) help that actually works, and it’s free

We live in an age where you can find a self-help for any and everything you could possibly imagine. It usually costs $29.95 plus shipping and handling, and they guarantee it will work.

One of the biggest promotions to scam people is weight loss products. All you have to do is take a pill three times a day and simply watch the weight fall off. There are no stipulations such as exercise, decreased portions, or any other sensible things. Just sit back in your recliner and lose weight!

One of my favorites of these many scams is the advertisement to gain weight. I believe it is CB Gain. Just take a pill and watch the pounds pile on. Let me enlighten you just a little. We just came through the Christmas holidays where I ate too much candy, cookies, and every other food you can imagine, and I saw the pounds add up without any outside help. I think they call it gluttony.

In our area alone there are thousands of people who deal daily with some type of hang-up that needs to be addressed. We could compile a long list of issues we deal with, from weight management to peace of mind. There are people working out at the gym today trying to conquer some specific issue.

You may be one that looks into the mirror not recognizing the person you are studying. Yes, it’s you! Where did the time go? How did I get to this place in life? How do I fix my issue? At this point, we must ask the question, “Do I have the ability to fix this issue?” The next question is, “Do I need to fix it?”

As I sit at my desk this morning at 6:30, I must confess to you that life has been good to me. My honest evaluation would be that I have been blessed beyond measure. I have come to realize my limitations and my strengths. I have also come to grips with the significant things of life. Every day we have is a gift, and we should make the best of it.

tive and gives me the ability to overcome lots of issues. I am glad that our Lord doesn’t see us as we do; He sees us as a project. We are under construction and the process takes time. No matter how driven we are, stubborn, or hard-headed, we can’t do it on our own. I realized long ago that I possess the best self-help available. There is no shipping and handling, and it doesn’t cost $29.95. It was all paid for at Calvary. All I must do is accept Jesus and then the work will begin. You may be thinking at this point that this all sounds too easy. It is easy for us because He has done everything required. Turn to Jesus, it is cheaper, and He works every time!

Through House Bill 1004, schools would implement recommendations from a 2018 Indiana school safety report in order to improve mental health resources for students and strengthen physical security. I am co-authoring this proposal for a new law to improve building security, provide funding for law enforcement and school resource officers, conduct threat assessments for schools and continue increasing investment into school safety and security. Schools would conduct at least one active shooter drill each semester to help better prepare students, teachers and staff.

Mental health screenings, risk behavior surveys and dedicated counselors would also be made more available to students through this legislation. This would help schools become more aware of any additional resources they should be offering. The measures taken would help prevent incidents and appropriately prepare school personnel to respond and react if they occur.

As a former law enforcement official, I understand that providing immediate medical attention to the injured in the event of an emergency is critical to saving lives. While prevention is important, we must also be ready to act in the rare event that someone is injured. Uncontrolled post-trauma bleeding is the leading cause of death among trauma patients, according to the Centers of Disease Control and Prevention. An additional piece of legislation would provide adequate resources, such as first aid kits and medical training, which would help school staff administer immediate medical attention. By implementing the “Stop the Bleed” initiative in the state, school personnel would be trained, equipped and empowered to give help in a bleeding emergency until paramedics arrive.

Indiana has invested in school safety and security policies, and this legislation is a part of that ongoing effort. To learn more about House Bill 1004, visit iga.in.gov. Your opinions matter, and as proposals for new laws progress through the process, let’s stay connected. For questions or input, please call 317-234-9999 or email H31@iga.in.gov.

possible without the support of both parents and other students, even those who are not involved.

“They’ll buy them an extra shirt. They’ll buy them the registration cost. They’ll pay for extra food when we travel. That all costs money, so parents have a huge stake in [our] success as well,” Huff said.

“Growth is always something that I am looking for. Growth can come through sheer numbers of students that are in my choir, but growth could also come through different opportunities that they have...But, there is definitely never going to be a point where I say, ‘yep, we’re good. Let’s just keep doing this.’”

we probably had a dozen record albums,” Freelan said. “One of our sponsors was the Book Nook, a Christian bookstore in downtown Marion, and they gave us a new album each month. I went to yard sales to look for albums, and people gave us their old records, so our collection began to grow.”

Burton left the program after a few months, and the name eventually was changed to “Sounds of Joy,” but Freelan continued with what has become a 50-year journey.

The record collection has continued to grow. “I probably have 1,500 albums now, and when CDs came along in the 1990s, I began to acquire them,” Freelan said. “Over the years, I’ve had hundreds of the old albums remastered and put on CDs to improve the quality.” Freelan said the cost to remaster one album has increased from $50 to $70 over the past 25 years.

“I would guess that ‘Sounds of Joy’ has as good a supply as anyone who is interested in the classic, conservative sacred music that I play,” he said. “Over the years, some listeners have suggested I should play some contemporary music, such as Elvis Presley, but I have refused to do that.”

As Freelan’s record collection grew, so did the number of radio stations that carried “Sounds of Joy.” At its peak, the program aired on 430 radio stations across America and in several other countries.

Freelan records the weekly, 30-minute show in a utility-barn-turned-radio-studio behind his home, south of Converse. He personally produces the program CDs, packages them and delivers them to the Greentown Post Office each week. “I do not have to mail 430 CDs, however, because some discs serve several stations,” he said. “For example, the Bible Broadcasting Network in North Carolina has several translators, which are mini-radio stations that may cover only a 15- to 20-mile range.”

Each Wednesday, Freelan drives to Marion and to Kokomo—to the two stations which first aired “Sounds of Joy”—to deliver their CDs in person. The program will continue to air at 8:30 a.m. Sundays on WCJC-FM in Marion.

In July 2018, Freelan, who is 86, discontinued producing the show for the other 428 stations.

During its 50-year run, Freelan never accepted any money from the program, nor did he ever have to appeal for money to keep the program on the air. He personally answered the hundreds of letters he received from listeners, many of them including donations.

“Even though I’ve never asked for money on the air, neither have I had to worry about not having enough money to support the program,” Freelan said. “God has blessed the ministry or it would never have grown as it did.”

Loud restaurants are becoming unavoidable

Sitting in a Marion restaurant the other day, pleasant company all around, good food in quantities that I did not need, and my mind went in two directions.

First to the newest of dining experiences in Marion: Texas Road House, the long-awaited and much-anticipated steak house south on the Bypass. I'm inclined to like it if only because Willie Nelson owns a chunk of the company. I guarantee you if Willie and Family and that monster bus are anywhere nearby he'll roll into the parking lot, pile out all by himself, wander into the restaurant and shake hands with all, first the employees and then the customers. I've seen it happen.

Now we all appreciate the place. Evidence? Take a look at the parking lot at any hour it's open. But when I have been there the thought in mind...remains in mind, because it is impossible to talk to anyone else at the table. The noise—the chatter, the collateral rattle of pots and pans, the over-the-top observance of birthdays, anniversaries, any occasion that brings the family and friends out to celebrate, is, in a word, deafening.

Full disclosure here: I am old and my hearing has gone the way of most all of my body parts; the factory equipment is failing.

That's when my mind went in the other direction and I flashed back a couple of generations to evenings whiled away at long-lost places in Marion like Emley's Restaurant, which was north on the Bypass, just about where the entrance to the now-defunct mall is, and the dining room and bar at the Holiday Inn, which was still farther north on the Bypass and featured a piano bar and musicians who made their living traveling what was called "the Holiday Inn circuit."

Nice dining rooms both, and, of course, it was Emley's where two very large stuffed bears, one brown, one white, were always on duty. While we're in the trivia department, among the musicians who worked the bar crowd at the Holiday Inn was a young Robert James Waller, who went on to write the blockbuster book and movie, "The Bridges of Madison County."

Both came to mind because they were of an era in which dignified quiet was prized by both patrons and management in restaurants. That quality—maintaining a decibel level that allowed for casual, even hushed conversation—has gone away. I wonder why.

Is it that we have less to say to one another now than we once did? Doubtful. Is it that we have developed some sort of primal desire to shout across the cave to each other? Probably not. I am assured by audio people that we speak neither louder nor faster than we ever did.

It simply has become a part of the culture now that it is okay to operate a restaurant at a noise level, a decibel count, in which boiler room mechanics and beer vendors from Wrigley Field feel quite at home.

All things have explanations, so I went in search of why and how this has happened. That led me to reporter Kate Wagner and some remarkable writing in The Atlantic magazine a while back.

Ed Breen's column is sponsored by: First Farmer's Bank & Trust—see their advertisement, below.

A MOMENT Ed Breen

"Restaurants are so loud because architects don't design them to be quiet," she found. "Much of this shift in design boils down to changing conceptions of what makes a space seem upscale or luxurious, as well as evolving trends in food service. Right now, high-end surfaces connote luxury, such as the slate and wood used in popular restaurant design."

She goes on: "Mid-century modern and minimalism are both here to stay. That means sparse, modern decor; high, exposed ceilings; and almost no soft goods, such as curtains, upholstery, or carpets. These design features are a feast for the eyes, but a nightmare for the ears. No soft goods and tall ceilings mean nothing is absorbing sound energy, and a room full of hard surfaces serves as a big sonic mirror, reflecting sound around the room."

"The result," she wrote, "is a loud space that renders speech unintelligible. Now that it's so commonplace, the din of a loud restaurant is unavoidable. That's bad for your health—and worse for the staff who work there. But it also degrades the thing that eating out is meant to culture: a shared social experience that rejuvenates, rather than harms, its participants."

"Luxury didn't always mean loud, and there are lessons to be learned from the glamorous restaurants of the past, including actual mid-century-modern eateries. From the 1940s through the early 1990s, fine-dining establishments expressed luxury through generous seating, plush interiors, and ornate decor. But more important, acoustic treatments themselves were a big part of that luxury."

That, she found, is gone, and you and I must learn to dine in the boiler factory. We can talk about it somewhere else, later.

Basketball Games of the Week/summaries

Boys Game of the Week:
Oak Hill 58-56 Madison-Grant

It's no secret that the Madison-Grant Argylls have had their share of struggles away from home this season. Heading into Friday night's matchup with the Oak Hill Golden Eagles, the Argylls were 5-2 at home but just 2-4 away from Fairmount.

Madison-Grant's road record fell to 2-5 on Friday, as scoring runs early in both halves by the Golden Eagles proved costly in a 58-56 defeat.

"I thought the difference was that they got off to a 9-0 start in the first half, which is never good," Madison-Grant Head Coach Brian Trout said. "Then, they got off to at least a 5-0 start in the second half, and the five [points] were all on putbacks, which really hurt. Those two stretches just killed us, so we're battling from behind the whole game."

Oak Hill dominated the first quarter, building a 20-9 lead, but the Argylls came roaring back in the second, outscoring the Golden Eagles 19-8 to force a 28-28 tie at halftime.

The game was close throughout the second half, and the Argylls had a few decent chances to close the game out, but their shots just would not fall. Isaac Cooper had a shot go in and out with 18 seconds left, and, later, a Kaden Howell jump shot was blocked. The Golden Eagles knocked down their free throws in the final seconds to secure the win.

"We did a very nice job of executing on the offensive end of the floor," Oak Hill Head Coach Kevin Renbarger said. "We took care of the ball as well as getting the shots we wanted. We were able to limit the drive on the offensive end as well as being a bit fortunate in MG struggling from the perimeter."

Grant Brown led the Argylls with 14 points, while Howell scored 13 and Cooper finished with nine. Tristen Hayes continues to develop into a solid player for Oak Hill, leading the team with 14 points, while Konnor Cabe and Tahj Johnson each scored 10 for the Golden Eagles.

Girls Game of the Week:
Oak Hill 50-23 Eastbrook

The Eastbrook Panthers, playing in their final home game of the season, could not have played a better first half against the No. 3 Oak Hill Golden Eagles on Thursday night. They did an excellent job of locking down Oak Hill junior phenom, Taylor Westgate, while not allowing the Golden Eagles to find any kind of rhythm on the offensive end of the floor.

In the second half, though, the Golden Eagles got back to their usual brand of basketball, clamping down defensively and finding their scoring touch in an eventual 50-23 triumph at the Panther Den.

Both teams traded baskets in the first quarter. Westgate and Kaela Robey scored the first two baskets of the game, but the Panthers countered with Kylie Standfest, who scored all of Eastbrook's points in the opening frame. The Panthers' defense did their job, holding the Golden Eagles to three-for-nine shooting.

Trailing 10-8 heading into the second quarter, the Panthers knocked down their first two shots to take a 13-10 lead. Sarah Foulk buried a triple, while Standfest followed with another field goal.

Eastbrook's defense continued to play at a high level throughout the second quarter, holding the Golden Eagles to a paltry four-of-13 shooting from the field.

"Just give them a lot of credit," Oak Hill Head Coach Todd Law said. "I thought they played extremely well. Obviously, we were struggling shooting from outside and weren't getting things to fall. [We] didn't get Taylor many touches inside, which is a tribute to their defense."

Despite their spirited defensive effort, however, the Panthers' offense could not get any of their remaining shots to fall in the first half, missing their final six attempts. Oak Hill scored the final nine points of the stanza to take a 19-13 lead at halftime.

The Golden Eagles began to settle down in the third quarter, executing at a higher level on the defensive end while finally getting into a groove offensively. After forcing just six turnovers in the first half, Oak Hill forced four turnovers in the frame, while Westgate, Andrea Wilk, and Marissa Wilk all began to enforce their will in the paint.

"We made a few adjustments at halftime," Law said. "We put Taylor in the high post instead of the low post and got her the ball, which allowed her some space to operate and get to the basket. So I thought that helped a little bit."

As the Panthers offense continued to struggle, the Golden Eagles took advantage, outscoring the home team 15-5 to take a 34-18 lead into the final quarter.

"Defensively, we did an awesome job those first two quarters," Eastbrook Head Coach Jeff Liddick said. "They turned up their pressure a little bit and kind of limited what we were able to do on offense. When you don't have the low post presence that they have to go battle like Taylor does and the Wilk girls, it's tough."

The Panthers battled until the end, but the Golden Eagles' proficient offense wore their defense down, scoring 14 more points to secure the 27-point victory.

"I thought effort wise, it was all out for four quarters," Liddick said. "...When you have to play a whole game like that against a team of thoroughbreds like that, you are going to run out of gas. That's what happened in the second half. They took advantage of that. That's a very good basketball team, and our girls have nothing to hang their heads about, that's for sure."

Adrianna Trexler played a strong second half, scoring 12 of her team-leading 14 points in the final 16 minutes, while also coming away with three rebounds and four assists. Westgate finished with a tough 13, while Kaela Robey scored 10 on four-for-six shooting. As a team, the Golden Eagles shot 44 percent from the floor and dominated on the glass, outrebounding the Panthers 28-12, which included 12 offensive boards.

On the other side, the Panthers shot just nine-for-32 from the floor, which included a four-for-14 mark after halftime. Kylie Standfest led Eastbrook with 11 points, while Foulk scored five. Offensive woes have plagued the Panthers as of late, and it's an area that will need to be addressed heading into sectional play.

"They just have to keep shooting," Liddick said. "They're good shooters. We know they're good shooters. Every shot they take, they have to think that it's going in and not [just] hope that it's going in."

Game summaries:
Panthers fall to Adams

On Tuesday night the Panthers were defeated by the Adams Central Flying Jets, 58-41. Garrett Holder led the Panthers with 11 points, while Dylan Bragg scored 10. Alex Baker added eight.

JB says basketball is back

At the end of last basketball season, many of us thought 2019 could be a heck of a season for the Marion Giants boys basketball team. Losing in the finals of the Marion Regional with an incredibly young team, you had to expect big things for the Giants this year.

But, as the six-time state champion coach Bill Green said more than once, he’d “rather be lucky then good.” The Giants had no luck this season when both of their all-state football standouts—Dre Aguilar and J.K. Thomas—were injured at the end of an incredible football season. So, we sat and waited, and waited, and waited some more for the Giants to get their full allotment of players back for the 2018-2019 basketball season.

This past weekend Marion finally had a chance to see what could be in store for the remainder of this basketball season when, for the first time all year, the starting five of Aguilar, Howard, Jones, Thomas and Blackmon were back. It wasn’t two easy opponents that Marion faced to get jump started, either. They dove into the deep end of the pool, playing first North Central Conference (NCC) leader Logansport and then Ft. Wayne Summit Conference leader Ft. Wayne Northrop.

This past week-end Marion finally had a chance to see what could be in store for the remainder of this basketball season when, for the first time all year, the starting five of Aguilar, Howard, Jones, Thomas and Blackmon were back.

The results are in. Marion scored 91 points in each game, looked more like the Golden State Warriors than a high school team, and beat Logan by 17 and Northrop by nine.

Suddenly the city of Marion has basketball fever, and, with the Marion Giant girls team having already won the NCC title, this could be one enjoyable February and March in the city that loves its hoops.

Good luck this week-
