Ford Meter Box

Ford Meter Box is seeking a Foundry Engineer for its Wabash location, located 70 miles north of Indianapolis, Indiana.

The Foundry Engineer will be responsible for various process related projects in the factory's foundry area. Two years of experience and a four-year mechanical engineering degree is preferred. Experience with induction furnaces would also be preferred.

Responsibilities include:

- Knowledge application of equipment operation to troubleshoot and improve foundry equipment
- Enhancing operations through equipment review, upgrade, and implementation
- Designing and specifying material handling equipment for foundry operations
- Estimating project details and relative costs to provide data for operational decisions
- Coordinating with vendors in purchase and the evaluation of products according to quality standards and specifications
- Facilitation of equipment layout, fabrication, and installation prints

Ford Meter Box is a leader in the manufacturing of waterworks distribution components. We operate a captive, greensand foundry and have facilities in both Indiana and Alabama. Our team is made up of individuals (production, skilled and professional) who enjoy working with each other in an atmosphere of mutual trust and respect. We offer competitive wages, a company-funded retirement plan, an onsite medical clinic, fitness facility and profit sharing. Only those candidates under consideration will be contacted.

Submissions of interest should reference the Foundry Engineer position. Prospects should send their resumes and salary history to the email address below: opportunities@fordmeterbox.com
